FIRE CHIEF IS FOUND GUILTY ON FIRST COUNT

SALEM, Oct. 21.—A verdict of guilty on the first count, that of giving Alderman Xavier Legendre a bribe of $100 for his vote to confirm him as fire chief, was returned against James A. Hamilton, fire chief of Lawrence, by a jury in the Essex Superior Court to-day.

The jury reported "not guilty" on the eight other counts of bribery and attempted bribery.

JURY WAS OUT OVER 21 HOURS.

The jury reported its verdict at 11.50 a. m. It had been out twenty-one and one-half hours.

When the verdict was reported Attorney Dooley, counsel for Hamilton, objected to the report because the foreman of the jury had declared in open court that the jury stood eleven to one. Dooley maintained that this had a tendency to intimidate the juror who was holding out.

Judge Schofield overruled the objection and dictated to the court stenographer a formal opinion to that effect.

This declaration of the 11 to 1 standing of the jury by the foreman in open court came at 10.30 a. m. At that time Judge Schofield sent for the jury, which had been out twenty hours. When the jurymen filed in and took their seats the Court asked:

Dramatic Scene in Court.

"What say you, Mr. Foreman, is there any chance that the jury will reach an agreement?"

The foreman replied:

"We have been working on one man for eight hours. We stand 11 to 1."

Judge Schofield sent the jury back, urging a speedy agreement if possible.

It was on this incident that Attorney Dooley based his objection to the final report at 11.50. It developed later, however, that when the jury first came in, it had already agreed on a verdict of guilty for the first count. The disagreement of which the foreman spoke was on the fifth count. So the verdict on the first count had been settled among the jurymen before the statement in open court.

The indictment of Hamilton was read on May 19 in the Superior Court at Newburyport, along with indictments against other prominent Lawrence citizens, city officials and ex-city officials. Among those were Mayor William P. White, ex-Alderman Matthew Burns and Councilman Xavier Legendre.

Nine Charges Made.

There were nine counts against Chief Hamilton, the first two alleging he promised Councilman Legendre sums of $200 and $300 for his vote on the confirmation of Hamilton as fire chief. Two other counts charged the payment of $200 and $100 for the same purpose. Other counts alleged that Chief Hamilton promised Councilman Burns $400 and $500 at different times for his vote, and that he paid $400 to Burns.

While Mayor White and the other men mentioned were indicted for conspiracy to bribe to oust Hamilton, Hamilton himself and some others were indicted for bribery in securing the confirmation of the appointment.

Since being indicted Chief Hamilton has remained in office, attending to his duties as usual. Burt Spring, in a statement he said his indictment was another attempt by his enemies to crush him, and he termed it the lifting of the curtain on the second act of the great plot, "Taken from the Banks." The chief referred to the fact that he had been promoted from the office of Lieutenant of Engine 2 to head of the department.

Surprise For the Mayor.

In May, 1909, Mayor White, feeling rest woefully sure, it is said, that Hamilton would get no confirmation by the Council, appointed him as chief of the fire department for three years, in place of Charles G. Hunter, the great surprise of Mayor White, four of the six Aldermen favored Hamilton and the latter was confirmed.

Several months later Mayor White is declared, tired of having the new chief in the voting Aldermen Malonee and Miller voted against Hamilton, while Aldermen McWeeket, Legendre, Burns and Moss favored him. According to the story that was current at the time, Mayor White had counted upon Malonee and Miller to vote with him in favor of removing the chief, and Alderman Legendre was expected to absent himself from the meeting, in return for which the tender of $1,000 to the latter, which figured in the indictments, was alleged to have been made.

White Also Convicted.

Legendre said he had not only been offered $1,000 to stay away from the meeting, but had also been offered money to vote for Hamilton's removal. Mayor White was found guilty of conspiracy by bribe on July 13. He was sentenced for three years in the House of Correction and to pay a fine of $1,000.

On the same time the jury found guilty Samuel Kress, Matthew Burns and Samuel D. Smart, who were charged with conspiring with the Mayor last December to bribe Aldermen Wood, Legendre and Moss, to bring about Hamilton's dismissal.

ALDRICH HIT BY AUTOMOBILE AND SERIOUSLY HURT

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—With seven policemen on guard to turn away newspapermen, Nelson W. Aldrich, Senior United States Senator from Rhode Iseland, is lying in a critical condition at the home of his son, Winthrop Aldrich, No. 540 Park avenue, to-day.

He was run down by an automobile last night at Sixtieth street and Madison avenue, and mystery at first as thrown about the case to-day by the fact that all information as to the extent of his injuries was refused.

DETAILS MADE PUBLIC AFTER TWELVE HOURS.

The details of the accident were learned to-day, more than twelve hours after he had been hurt. The Senator had started to cross the street when he noticed a car coming swiftly down upon him. Recalling his proud lament, he turned suddenly, only to be confronted by a taxicab, which had turned into the street. The Senator, apparently dazed by the proximity of danger, stepped forward blindly.

At the 3rd step one of the auto's axles struck him. The front step of the car caught him and hurled him to the ground. The force of the blow rolled him over several times.

Several persons who had witnessed the accident hurried to his aid and carried him to the stoop of a house nearby. Not realizing the full extent of his injuries, he declined the services of a physician, declaring that he thought he could take care of himself. From there he staggered to a grocery store.

Three Physicians Called.

That the Senator had been badly hurt was evidenced by the arrival in quick succession of three physicians at the house today. These physicians when seen upon leaving would make no statement.

At the time they left no report of the accident had been made to the police of the East Sixty-seventh station, and no effort has been made to find the driver of the machine that run the Senator down while crossing the street in the dark.

Senator Aldrich with his wife reached this country only a few days ago from Europe, where they had spent a vacation of several months. Since his arrival here he has been stopping at an uptown hotel.

Hit Crossing the Street.

As the Senator attempted to cross Sixtieth street a powerful machine turned into the side street from Madison avenue. Evidently bewildered by the unexpected appearance of the machine, the Senator stood stockstill in the middle of the street.

Before the chauffeur could throw on his brake the car struck Senator Aldrich and hurled him several feet. The chauffeur, without stopping to ascertain the injuries of the Senator, turned on his speed and disappeared in the darkness. A few minutes later, Senator Aldrich, his left eye discolored, his left cheek badly cut, his arm hanging limp at his side and his black frock coat torn at the shoulder and covered with mud, staggered into a grocery store nearby.

He appeared on the verge of collapse and asked for help, thinking he was in a drug store. When he found his mistake he insisted on going to his son's house unassisted.

Suffering from Shock.

Dr Holbrook Curtis, one of the attending physicians, after spending several hours at the bedside of the Senator, made the following statement to-day:

"Senator Aldrich is suffering more from shock than from injuries. He was resting easy when I left. However, owing to the advanced age of the Senator—he is past seventy—complications may follow."

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., left the home of Winthrop Aldrich at 11 a. m. He said at that time Senator Aldrich was resting comfortably and was expected to recover within a few days.

LODGE IS ACCUSED BY FOSS

Congressman Eugene N. Foss, Democratic candidate for Governor, has started the fight for the office with the flat, emphatic declaration that Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, boss of the Republican party in this State, has corrupted the voters of Massachusetts with a lavish expenditure of money.

Candidate Foss couples the name of Senator Lodge's son-in-law, Augustus P. Gardner, with that of Lodge in his startling charges. This is one of the sentences in a statement by Mr. Foss that bristles with accusations of the gravest character:

"Lodge Studies Checkbook."

Making his charges more personal still, Mr. Foss asserts that in his earlier campaigns Senator Lodge, "this scholar in politics, studied his checkbook more than works on political economy and depended upon it to do his work."

What Mr. Foss Says.

Mr. Foss's statement follows, in part:

"I was very much interested this morning in reading Senator Lodge's speech before the Postmasters' Association of New England. Senator Lodge decried the use of money in political campaigns and seemed to fear that such use of money was dangerous and corrupting. In order that I may not be accused of misrepresenting Senator Lodge I will quote from the report in the morning papers extracts from his speech. The Senator said:

"More important than the tariff and the cost of living to the welfare of the State and the country is the assurance that the vote of the people will be the fair and full expression of their beliefs, and that the methods by which candidates are elected will be those which commend themselves to the best judgment of the people.

"Force or fraud in the conduct of elections are the forerunners of revolution, and are utterly hostile to the principles of American government. There is nothing more dangerous to the Republic than to have either the election or the nomination of public officers controlled by force or fraud or both. It is more insidious and sinister in its influence—the large expenditure of money. We will soon to govern the United States and not money.

"I know that a campaign cannot be conducted without campaign funds, but that is different from pouring in huge sums of money to gratify a single candidate. It will be a sorry day for the country if it ever comes to pass that the result of an election is determined by votes bought or sold."

Time for Senator to Reform.

"I am very glad to see that Senator Lodge has experienced a change of heart. It is now time. There are those who have not forgotten Senator Lodge's early campaigns for Congress when his district was flooded with money, how this scheme in politics studied his check book more than

Mayor Starting Auto Trucks Away on Run

Picture taken today by Boston American photographer shooting Mayor Fitzgerald about to give the word "go"

47 BIG AUTO TRUCKS OFF IN RACE TO-DAY

With Mayor Fitzgerald officiating as starter, the forty-seven automobile commercial trucks, rated in five classes and weighing from one-half to five tons each, started from the Parisian Palace Garage at 8.30 today in the two days' reliability run to Newburyport and return, for trophies offered by the BOSTON AMERICAN. The start was witnessed by more than 500 people. Just before the Morgan truck got under way, Mayor Fitzgerald said:

Mayor Gives the Word.

"I congratulate the BOSTON AMERICAN upon its enterprise in arranging this test, and there is no question in my mind that the motor truck is the conveyance of the future, and it will be only a short time when all the trucking business of the country will be so conducted. As Mayor of the city I am glad to be here.

Raising his right hand the Mayor said:

"Are you ready? Go! And good luck go with you."

The other cars started thirty seconds apart. Nearly a hundred private automobiles accompanied the trucks on the first stage of the run.

The run is recognized by every truck manufacturer in America as the first and greatest real test of the reliability and economy of the commercial truck to be held in this country. The fact that forty-seven cars started in the contest, and that one of them was driven overland from Philadelphia and another from Buffalo in order to compete, gives but a faint conception of the interest aroused in the test.

Each truck was carefully weighed by

SALT CODFISH UP TO RECORD PRICE

The price of salt codfish to-day shot to the highest mark in the history of Boston and Gloucester fisheries. To-day's advance was 75 cents per hundredweight for large and 75 cents for medium fish. The schooner American, with 250,000 pounds, and the Monitor 150,000, with 200,000 pounds of fish, sailed on the banks received the highest price ever brought, $4.50, medium $4.10 and scrapers $3.25. Dealers predict that the price will advance further, and unless record catches are made no reduction will be made until next Spring.

ROOSEVELT IS ASKED IF HE IS WITH TAFT

Frederick W. Peabody, a prominent lawyer of Boston and a Taft Republican, has an open letter today to former President Roosevelt, who speaks this evening at the Arena, putting the following questions to him:

"Are you for Taft in 1912?"

Mr. Peabody wants Mr. Roosevelt to answer his question to-night. The lawyer's letter follows:

Hon. Theodore Roosevelt, No. 56 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.:

My Dear Sir: I am a Taft Republican, most earnestly hopeful that the President shall be elected to succeed himself in 1912. I respectfully ask of you, on your part, share my cordial desire for the renomination and re-election of Mr. Taft in 1912?

It cannot be unknown to you that throughout the country generally a strong feeling prevails that you want and will endeavor to obtain the Presidential nomination in 1912; and many Republicans, myself amongst the number, will be moved by that belief to vote against loyal candidacy in whose behalf you shall have spoken, to the only way in expressing our disapproval of your conduct and loyalty to Mr. Taft. I have never voted a Democratic State ticket in my twenty-five years of political activity, and the Democratic ticket in Massachusetts is far from an inviting one, but I shall vote it from top to bottom because of your speech in favor of the Democratic ticket unless there is a very definite and straightforward announcement by you that you will not be a candidate for the Presidential nomination in 1912, and that you favor and will heartily favor the renomination and re-election of Mr. Taft, such declaration by you would save many Republican votes to the party in the coming election, and the voters of the country have a right to know at this time whether or not the prevailing opinion of you is correct, as I myself feel. This evening's meeting at Arena is a good occasion for you to make an unequivocal announcement on the subject, and I respectfully ask that you will kindly yourself of it to remove the matter entirely from the fight of doubt or uncertainty.

Shall send a copy of this letter to the Boston newspapers in order that the voters of this community may know that the question has been propounded to you, and I respectfully submit that a failure on your part to make any response at tonight's meeting will justify the inference that it is your purpose to displace Mr. Taft two years hence if you possibly can.

Yours very truly,

FREDERICK W. PEABODY.

CRIPPEN IS CONFUSED ON STAND

LONDON, Oct. 21.—The pitiful figure of Dr. H. H. Crippen, confused, self-damaging and cringing—writhing beneath a pitiless rain of questions while he slowly saw his case tottering before him, featured his sensational trial for the murder of his actress-wife, in old Bailey Court to-day.

The defense closed at 3:30 p. m. All records for speed in a criminal trial have been broken in this case. Crippen swore to-day that the hyoscin he bought was used as a purge tonic for his pathetic little wife.

Under the merciless cross-examination of Prosecutor Richard Muir, Crippen rabidly changed from the self-complaisant, dapper prisoner into an object of pity. Court attaches declared that he had plowed the house about his own neck, and the spectacle presented was one of the most pitiable in the annals of the famous old criminal of justice.

Crippen admitted that he knew of no person who had seen or heard from his wife since February 1, yet did he know any one who had seen her leave his residence at No. 39 Hilldrop crescent alive. He admitted that his testimony concerning her leaving him to join another man in America was mere assumption.

It was his most terrible cross-examination within the memory of the barristers who looked on. At times Solicitor Tobin tried to save his client from the avalanche of questions which were rained upon him.

Questions Like Whips.

Like the merciless personification of justice, Prosecutor Muir stood directly before the prisoner, hurling broadside after broadside at the disdainful prisoner. The questions came like the snapping of whips, until the amusement of those in the courtroom gave way to sympathy for the accused man.

"Do you know of any person who has seen Belle Elmore Crippen or heard from her since her disappearance?" was the first question shot at the prisoner after he had mounted the witness chair.

The witness faltered and took startled. "I do not," he replied.

"How can you prove your wife left your home alive or that she ever left at all?" snapped out Prosecutor Muir.

Crippen paled as he realized the damage his own words had given the question entitled.

"Answer my question," thundered Muir, shaking his finger at Crippen.

"I cannot," replied the doctor.

"How did you know that Mrs. Crippen went to America to join Bruce Miller, as

RAIN HOLDS UP WORLD SERIES CHICAGO GAME

CHICAGO, Oct. 21.—Rain, which failed to prevent a contest yesterday, put a quietus on the great world's series game between the Cubs and Athletics this afternoon, and forced its postponement until to-morrow. Thus Chicago will get the game to-morrow, instead of Philadelphia, and in case of a Cub victory will also have the Sunday game.

The rain was disconcerting to the Athletic team and supporters, but was a relief to the Chicagoans. It will give the Cub pitchers a chance to rest up after their strenuous week and gain some semblance of form.

On the other hand, the Athletics, flushed with victory, were in great condition to keep up the work and the effect of a day's layoff may be detrimental. They have been working in full swing and the sudden stop may not produce good results.

If the Athletics take the next game, they will have established an unprecedented feat, the winning of a world's championship in four straight games. This is what Connie Mack is planning and looking for.

The Cubs have lost all hope of winning the series. To take four games from the Philadelphia sluggers at the present time is well-nigh impossible. They can hope to get one and perhaps two games, but that is all.

The defeat of Thursday was the most decisive yet. The American League champions clearly outplayed them from start to finish. A glance at the batting averages of the two teams tells the whole story. Every man on Connie Mack's aggregation has been slugging the ball consistently.

ROOSEVELT IN BOSTON FOR LODGE SPEECH

Theodore Roosevelt arrived in Boston at 3 o'clock this afternoon and was immediately driven to the residence of Dr. W. Sturgis Bigelow at No. 50 Beacon street. He was accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, while Guy Murchie and Roger Wolcott, constituting the committee of arrangements of the Republican Club, also made the trip over from New York as his companions.

At the Back Bay station, Senator Lodge was on hand to greet the former President, who to-night at the Boston Arena takes the stump in behalf of the senior senator of Massachusetts. A dinner in honor of Colonel Roosevelt is to be given at the Union Club at 6 o'clock, and the start for the Arena will be made at 7:30.

To-morrow Colonel Roosevelt goes to New Hampshire, where he will deliver three addresses in behalf of the candidacy of Robert P. Bass for Governor. He leaves Boston on a special train at 9 o'clock and speaks from the steps of the State House at Concord at 11:15. At 1:45 o'clock he is scheduled to speak from a stand on the Merrimack Common in Manchester, and at 4:15 his third address of the day will be given at Nashua.

DARING HOLDUP IN PARK SQUARE

Edward B. Russell, diamond merchant in the Jewelers' building, reported to police headquarters today that he was held up by three young men in Park square last night and was robbed of a $50 watch and a diamond ring worth $150.

Russell told the reporters that after he was robbed he telephoned police headquarters, but did not give any description.

After he came into Park square from the telephone booth he was approached by a policeman for immediate conference. He was detained during the night. He came to headquarters this morning after a second and more formal complaint about being robbed.

Russell is a man of medium size. He lives at No. 45 Dix street, Dorchester. His story as told today:

"I was walking on Eliot street trying to sell the diamond ring to a customer for $150. As I was passing over Park square the ring on me. When I went out they followed. As I turned from Eliot street into Park square they backed me up against the railing and one of them grabbed me by the throat. I did not get a good look at him, but he was a young man. The other two were young men, too. They took my watch and ring and ran away. I then went to police headquarters and reported the matter."

NEW CULT STARTED IN BOSTON TO SUPPLANT SUFFRAGE MOVEMENT

Madame Zoëtt Bell-Ranske is being discussed, then I wish there was some way ensued to Boston and vicinity to put a stop to fashionable fraeeites because of her views regarding fashion women see their duties are so woman's mission is modern. She has a much higher than politics? The vote is a studio in New York now, but before she details. Women ought to be doers and came to the land of the free and the not talkers; they should practice and not home of Tammany she was prominent in theorize.

London societ...

She is not a Suffragette and she is not opposed particularly to that movement. But she has started one of her own. She talks is of more importance. There is some specialty in this city as to how soon there will be a Boston branch. It is believed here that this city is the place to battle any kind of a reform.

Madame Zoëtt Bell-Ranske might be her movement "The United Highness."

"My platform can be said, 'a high right to politics. A woman's duty toward life ethical, not political. The argument and strife over equal suffrage gives no idea.

"The sight of women begging men for something that cannot really matter in the end. If clothing is the world's ideal for their glamor, then I wish they would get it. It is definite, ethical, sensible ideal.

"It is not the laws that need to be amended, it is the law breakers.

"Let women learn their duty toward humanity, toward the social question. Women are so industrial more spiritual than men, they can feel the spiral of others. Like draw like. Let women conquer and lead to higher things through the soul, let men trail after with the ne plus ultra of the law.

"Then you believe women have a mission outside the home?' she was asked.

"Within and without the home, always and assuredly one step higher," replied Mme. Bell-Ranske smiling. "I believe in sympathy with the person who says a woman's place is in the home above and not the day is which we seem to look upon woman's devotion to the home as a child, sentimentality is like the society become rotten to the core. Devotion to what the home stands for spiritually is one of woman's highest duties, just as he devotion to the great spiritual needs of life outside the home is another. Something infinitely higher than petites for women are above politics.

"And above physical labor in the home and out of it?"

"I do not believe any woman ever wanted to earn her livelihood with her hands and looked upon the work as the highest end of her existence. To women labor with their hands must ever be makeshift until something higher, more right, is vouchsafed them. For men," concluded Mme. Bell-Ranske, "it is to toil with the hands and the dry mechanism of trade, but for women, suffrage and politics are the beacon-light for ship-wrecked souls."

CANADIAN GIRL WHO WINS HONORS AS CLEVER GOLFER

Miss Dorothy Campbell.

MISS CAMPBELL, CANADIAN GIRL, SAVES TEAM

Miss Dorothy Campbell is the heroine of the Canadian golfers, for she was the only member of the Canadian team to win in the last day's play at the Country Club, under the auspices of the Women's Association. She defeated Mrs. F. J. Wheeler, Jr., by two up.

Miss Campbell is a clever golfer and a social favorite. She was followed over the course by a large number of Boston friends who cheered her good work on the links. The Canadian team has played on as one of the strongest players in Canada and it is expected that the fame will place her as one of the great women golfers of the country.

In her contest with Mrs. Wheeler, Miss Campbell played some beautiful shots as she always does, but that mechanical perfection with which she usually brings off her strokes was not by any means always the dominating characteristic of her game. Mrs. Wheeler was one up at the fourth, and four of the next five holes the capitalized this a half in fours, so that the Boston player was three down at the turn. At the seventeenth Mrs. Wheeler had reduced the lead to one up, but Miss Campbell got a magnificent five for the hole, won it to seven and the match.

WHERE THE DANGER LIES

How Best to Avoid it—Facts Everybody Ought to Know

The great danger in colds at this season of the year is that they lead to grip and consumption.

The moment you begin to take patent medicines and so called cough cures, the majority of which depend entirely on nerve-deadening drugs for their effect, you weaken the body.

That takes away the fighting power necessary to ward off disease, and the grip and pneumonia germs develop, and because the body is weakened is why pneumonia is so often fatal.

Father John's Medicine is not patent medicine and does not contain alcohol or dangerous drugs. It cures throat and lung troubles, coughs and

HAMMER SAFE THROUGH WALL, THEN LOOT IT

Burglars forced their way into the stables of Charles S. Stone, milk contractor at No. 42 West Lenox street, Roxbury, early today, drove the heavy iron safe through a wall with a sledge hammer, smashed the combination with a pick axe, rifled the safe of its contents and escaped undetected. They got approximately $75 in bills and some change.

The burglars also entered in by the same gang of "safe men" who have twice during the past year smashed the safe of the Marston Coal Company at Weston and Tremont streets, Roxbury. The safe bars left no clew.

They gained entrance to the stables from the rear. They effected a fence in the rear, but that they did not attempt to in the rear of the stables and dropped into the stable yard.

Wrenching off an iron guide which held the barn door in place, the burglars reached the safe and hurried to the office in the front of the building.

The safe was in solid one and was set in the wall of the office. By smashing in with a sledge hammer, the burglars succeeded in forcing the heavy iron box through the wooden wall. It fell out on the floor of the washroom. The combination was then smashed with pick axe and the burglars found no difficulty in prying open the door. Nothing else in the stable was disturbed and it is supposed the burglars left the building the same way they entered.

CRIPPEN CONFUSED UPON THE STAND IN DEATH TRIAL

you stated on direct examination?" came next.

Again Crippen hesitated and looked toward his counsel with appeal in his eyes.

"I only supposed so; she seemed to be very friendly with him."

Crippen clutched the arms of his chair. Perspiration stood out upon his pale forehead. All his assurance was gone.

AN ABSOLUTE NECESSITY

So Thinks At Least One Traveling Man.

I would as soon think of starting out without my mileage books and grip as to start on a trip without a box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets in my valise, and a traveling man always represents a St. Louis hardware house. Why? Because I have to put up at all kinds of hotels and boarding houses. I have to eat good, bad and indifferent food at all hours of the day and night and I don't believe any man or woman will stand that sort of thing without indigestion, sooner or later, unless they have something to break the fall and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets is the stuff. I eat what I like and as much as I like, and I am never sick.

My friends often think me absent, but the fact is I'm on business most of the time. Of course, I see advertisements of medicines for indigestion, but I notice that they are nearly always complaining of their aches and pains and feel discouraged, while I can stand most any old kind of fare and feel good all ready for my day's work. It needs me, and I mean I owe my good digestion and sound sleep to the daily, regular use of Stuart's Tablets. I drink in and eat what I want, and all the "pushing" in the world will never convince me to the contrary.

I used to have something about three times a day and a headache about three or four times a week and after standing for this for four or five years I began to look around for a cure for myself, and when my doctor told me the best investment I could make would be a fifty cent box of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and I have myself about fifty cents a month for them ever since and when I stop to think that that is over I spend every day for cigars, I feel like kicking myself, and when I can keep my stomach and digestion in first-class order for fifty cents a month, I don't care for any better investment.

We presume you are the same as most people in all matters of medicine and that they have purchased their remedy and success because they had confidence in the testimonial and results, or what count in a patent medicine as much as in other business.

The women crowded their necks to see the prisoner, and as usual women made up the bulk of the audience. Some of them had even brought opera glasses with them the better to see the prisoner.

As the cross-examination proceeded the solemn mask dropped. Even Lord Chief Justice Alverstone leaned forward upon his desk, listening with intentness to the queries and veiled replies and gazing with solemn attention at the strange but dramatic courtroom scene. Behind him upon the massive limit reposed the dreaded black cap, which all justices in England must don in pronouncing death sentences. The clock neared to come when Mr. Muir walked up before the prisoner as presaging as the Avenger of Crime in his black coat and sullen

Crippen started to reply, then checked himself and said in a weak voice:

"No, I did not."

Guessed at Her Flight.

Prosecutor Muir then asked Crippen why he thought his wife had gone to America to join another man.

"Our domestic relations had been strained—it was the only guess I could make."

"Did you know that inquiries for your wife would useless because she was dead?" asked Mr. Muir in a loud voice.

"I did not know she was dead," replied the witness, with his first show of audience since taking the witness stand.

"What did you do with the money you received when you pawned your wife's clothing and jewelry?"

"I used it for advertising my medical remedies."

A the steady flow of interrogatories stiffed from the dreaded subject of the murder Crippen brightened temporarily. He sat erect in his chair, lowers which looked as though they had been newly pressed and his stylish frock coat fitted him like a glove.

Crippen glanced about the room and soon noticed with a display of interest at the rows of handsome and stylishly gowned women. He stopped his brow with a silk handkerchief and shifted his tiny bulk uneasily in the chair. Ever since he had entered the room with the opening of the court he kept glancing about the room as though looking for some one.

In the corridors attendees of the court had but one subject, and that was the terrible cross-fire which was going on in the court room where Crippen was on trial. The current belief was that Crippen's case had failed.

The witness' respite was short-lived, for Mr. Muir again plunged in with "What made you think that your wife had left you at that particular time. Did you think it reasonable that she should go after you had agreed to live together, although not as man and wife?"

"It did seem unreasonable to me," said the witness, "that she had long threatened to go and she was a very impulsive creature."

Couldn't Tell About Clothes.

Crippen said that he did not know whether his wife had taken any clothes with her when she left home or not. He was unable to tell what she wore at the time.

"Was Miss LeNeve living with you when you wrote those letters stating that your wife was left you?" asked the prosecutor.

"I do not remember," repeated Le mit mess wearily.

"Ethel LeNeve did come to live with you, didn't she?" persisted Muir.

"Oh, yes," answered Crippen quite readily.

"The witness did not say just when Miss LeNeve had joined him, but he thought it was before Easter.

"Did the girl go to your residence, No. 39 Hilldrop crescent, to live with you permanently?"

"That was the understanding between us."

At this point the court made a ruling regarding the admission of the evidence contained in the microscopic portions of the graphs had been made from portions of Crippen's remains found in the cellar of Crippen's home, and each side was apparently satisfied lest the other should steal a march by misexplanation to the jury.

Belle Very Ill in America.

The judge announced what the jury might examine the slides privately after an explanation of the pictures had been made by the medical experts for both sides. The ruling also stated that counsel for the defense and prosecution might both be present during the inspection. Then the Lord Chief Justice himself promised to see that no improper questions were asked by the lawyers.

Prosecutor Muir next produced a letter dated March 20, 1910, wherein Crippen had written, "Belle is very ill in America and I am very much upset over it."

"Did you write that letter, sir?" asked Muir with unfeeling blandness.

Crippen took the letter with trembling fingers and examined it minutely, turning it over in both his hands before replying.

"It is in my writing," he explained, handing back the document, when was immediately put into evidence as an exhibit.

"At that time was Ethel LeNeve living with you?" asked the prosecutor.

Crippen thought a minute and replied that she was.

"You were both planning a trip to Dieppe, France, at the time that letter was written, weren't you?" cried the crown's counsel with an emphatic gesture.

"We were thinking of going," admitted Crippen.

"And you went at Easter time?" queried Muir.

"We spent five days there," answered the witness.

At times Solicitor Tobin made effectual attempts to stem the tide against Crippen by objecting to questions.

Crippen looked mightily thankful for the temporary moments of relief given him during the objections. He had grown extremely nervous. He slunk down into the chair and at times wore the look of a hunted animal. At other times he glared with fear and animosity in his eyes as the prosecutor cleverly led him into admissions. Muir showed a masterful grip on the case in every phase. He had evidently made a close study of every feature of it, even down to the medical side.

The Body in the Cellar.

Crippen, in reply to questions as to where he thought his wife was in America, said that he did not think she would visit her sister. "She would not have the nerve to do that after leaving me," said he, "especially if she were with another man."

Was the cellar in your house in Hilldrop Crescent disturbed in any way during your occupancy there?" asked Muir.

"It was absolutely undisturbed, so far as I know, during my five years' tenancy there."

"I presume, then, that you did not know there was a human body buried there," said Muir, with a ring of irony in his voice.

"My lawyers told me that the remains of a human being had been dug up in the cellar—that was the first I knew of it," said the witness.

"How do you suppose they got there?" queried the prosecutor.

This question seemed an enigma to the witness. The little doctor squirmed and fidgeted in his chair.

"I don't know," he replied. "It looks improbable that any one would place them there, but it is possible."

At this point the Crown's counsel strolled toward the counsel table of the prosecution, upon which lay a motley mass, composed of various exhibits. Among the articles on the table was the jacket of a suit of pajamas which had been dug up in the cellar during the inspection. With it was the other section of the suit which had been found in a trunk in Crippen's living quarters. Jacket and trousers were of the same cloth, color and size.

Unable to Answer.

"The detective," said Mr. Muir, addressing Crippen, "found this pair of pajama trousers in a trunk belonging to you." Here he picked up the garment. "What became of the jacket?" demanded Muir quickly.

Crippen looked at the garments in a dazed sort of way. He moistened his lips with his tongue and ran his hand slowly over his forehead.

"I don't know," he replied huskily.

Here the prosecutor took a new tack. "When did you decide to flee?" he queried in a savage tone of voice.

Crippen looked relieved as he was getting back on safer territory. He glanced toward the oak ceiling of the dim courtroom.

"I made up my mind to leave England on the ninth day of July," he said, slowly. "That was the day after Inspector Dew had visited me," he continued.

"And why did you wish to flee if you were not guilty, as you say?" persisted Muir.

"I knew I was suspected of Belle's death," said Crippen, brightening up, "and I did not want to be placed in jail until she was found."

Crippen was getting back to the evidence where he showed up so favorably yesterday. He became self assured and his nervousness gave way to half defiance. He seemed to have gained his old time composure and testified more clearly and easily.

Sure Wife Would be Found.

"I felt sure she would be found," continued the witness, "but I wanted to spare Miss LeNeve from a public scandal. It was for both our sakes that I decided to flee."

Crippen began to ponder his replies. When Muir would ask the question the witness would weigh it in his mind before answering. Crippen said that even when Inspector Dew boarded the Montrose at Father Point, Canada, and placed him under arrest he was positive in his own mind that his wife was alive somewhere in the United States. Crippen said he suspected Dew's mission, but was not sure.

Muir asked:

"Didn't you say to the inspector: 'Dew, I'm not sorry to go with you; the anxiety on my mind has been too great.' Now, what did you mean by that?"

"I thought," said Crippen, slowly, "that I was being arrested on a charge, the nature of which I did not know."

Hyoscin as Nerve Tonic.

Crippen testified that hyoscin was recommended to a book on medicine as a nerve tonic. Asked by the Chief Justice for the name of the book, saying that much depended upon this part of the evidence, Crippen replied: "Hempel and Arndt's Dictionary of Homeopathics."

The judge directed Tobin to secure a copy of this book and continued to question the witness.

Crippen said his wife left all her jewelry except a few rings. He said he had no reason to be disturbed in mind up to July 8, when he found he was suspected of his wife's murder.

At this point the cross-examination was concluded, after Crippen had been on the stand nearly four hours.

Crippen left the stand with relief in his face. Solicitor Tobin scored a point for the defence by the next witness, Dr. Turnbull, an eminent attache of the London

Hospital, who testified that in his opinion the mark upon the piece of human flesh introduced in evidence could not possibly be a scar.

After Crippen left the stand it was reported that the quartermaster of the Montrose was in London, and that he would be called to the stand to refute Crippen's testimony that a pistol existed on the Montrose to enable Crippen to escape to Quebec with the quartermaster's assistance.

CURE OF ECZEMA AND DANDRUFF

By One Box of Cuticura Ointment and One Cake of Cuticura Soap. Head Perfectly Clear.

"I am pleased to inform you that I have been cured by Cuticura Soap and Ointment. Since I was a boy I have suffered with dandruff, not only from the itching but from its disagreeable appearance in a scaly form all over my head. I had to brush it off my clothes all day long. I used every kind of preparation supposed to cure dandruff, also soaps and shampoos, but it seemed to me that, instead of improving with these remedies, the dandruff increased, even my hair began to fall out and the result was that two months ago eczema developed on my scalp.

"I suffered so from this that as a last resource I thought I would try Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. They had the most gratifying results for I had used only one box of Cuticura Ointment and a single cake of Cuticura Soap when I was cured, the eczema and dandruff were gone and my head perfectly clear.

"I can assure you that so long as I live no other soap than Cuticura will be used by me and all those near to me. I will also add that I will always use Cuticura Ointment as a dressing for the hair. I feel that you should know of my cure and if you desire you may use this as a true testimonial which comes from a sufferer of thirty years' standing. I will be happy to tell any one of my experience in order to assist those who may be suffering from the same disease. (Signed) Acevedo, General Commission Merchant, 59 Pearl St., New York, Apr. 21, 1910."

Cuticura Remedies are the most economical treatment for affections of the skin and scalp. A sale of Cuticura Soap (25c.) and a box of Cuticura Ointment (50c.) are often sufficient. Sold throughout the world. Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Sole Props., 135 Columbus Ave., Boston, Mass.

WELLESLEY COLLEGE GIRLS CAN WIN BREAD AS WELL AS MAKE IT

Further details of the bread-winning ante, returning to a small town, finds her and bread-making capacity of Wellesley knowledge and experience of little value College girls have come to light. This to her is a place where Schopenhauer time the authority is of the very best, it and the Pre-Raphaelites are seldom on a is the girls themselves. The College par with Myrtle Reed and Harrison Fisher, News, stirred by the charge that the girls the college girl is like the proverbial are more ornamental than useful, has come fish out of water. It is true an alumna to the defense of it's own, and here is once exclaimed that she found it impossible to settle down at home, she'd been what it has to say:

"Our indignation, both personal and so used to the society of geniuses." But communal, has been smouldering for a this girl was a most unusual girl. Most long time, and we seize with avidity this graduates, who do not enter professions opportunity of turning it to good purpose or continue their studies in wider fields, in a defense of the college woman. We soon find their places at home helping have listened to and read distorted ac- out their families, very often taking part counts of her attitude, her dissatisfaction in the movement for social and municipal with herself and with her education, of improvement, making the community a her lack of preparation for her life's work better and richer place for their being in of housekeeping and home-making; we have been silent through arraignments of her shallow 'general culture' and barren 'speculation,' until silence becomes a guilty submission.

"One of the most noticeable of the articles referred to above appeared in a recent number of a popular woman's monthly, but may remember it as charmingly illustrated with portraits of sweet American girlhood, her hair unbound, enwreathed with artificial flowers. The author writes, and the remark appears again in a headline: 'It prepares men, but women—It' being a college education—and follows up this pithy statement by recounting the tale of a youth, who is now a successful moneymaker, because he studied engineering when at college, while his sister, pitifully uneducated on languages and literature, sits at home deploring the fact that she can't turn her knowledge into bread-making. We are truly sorry for this young woman, and indeed, admit that a course of domestic science would have been a valuable addition to her college curriculum. However, we bid her be of good cheer, as there are still many years before her—she is described as a young person of 24—in which to learn the subtle art of bread-making.

Objects to the Comparison.

"But return to the point. We object to the writer's choice of comparison. A man specializing in engineering should not be compared to a woman taken a general culture course, but rather to the woman who goes through a normal school, business college of other place where professional training is given. Viewing the matter in the opposite way, is the man who takes a course in the liberal arts—and we think that such men predominate in the same proportion as women—is such a man any better fitted for his 'life work' than a woman taking the same course? Does a man bring away with his degree of B. A. anything more than the much despised acquirements of culture and poise, the power of orderly thought and a knowledge of people and things that makes smoother his future path?

"The average college man enters a business house with whose practical routine he is much less familiar than is the average college woman with the intricacies of household management. We judge that here at Wellesley at least two-thirds of the students have taken, and still do take during vacations, an active share in the home responsibilities; that nearly all of us are capable of plain sewing and cooking, and these often in connection with some musical, artistic or literary gifts.

Able to "Get Divorce."

"On the whole, we are quite able to 'hang a curtain' and 'get a dinner.' There are other ways of acquiring such knowledge than through courses in domestic science, cressmaking and the like. The girl in the ordinary home is brought up to them. She may lack a knowledge of food values, but she is not the ignorant and helpless creature of magazine creation.

"As for the girl who has lacked this home training, it is not unlikely to ask whether she is not somewhat better off for four years of college training than the society girl at home, who is equally ignorant of domestic cares, and quite uncontrolled of interesting herself in them. The college girl is at least 'dissatisfied,' and wants to learn—even the young person of twenty-four, previously referred to, seems to have that ambition—and with the balance and common sense which are hoped have gained through the years of mental discipline at college, her success should not be far off—for mental discipline and common sense have a lot to do with bread-making.

"Again, it is said that the college graduate is not interested in any way with the election of members of the Legislature, or of other public officer. We shall not give or offer to any public officer, directly or indirectly, any consideration which shall tend to influence him in the performance of his public duties. We shall do away with the lobby, in the sense in which that term is commonly used. We must, however, employ the ablest talent we can secure to present to the Legislature our views upon pending legislation affecting our company. At the end of the next legislative session there will be no complaint about the pernicious activity of any lobby employed in our interest—President Charles S. Mellen, of the Boston & Maine Railroad, in speech at Concord, N. H.

Republican Campaign

FOSS' RECORD SCORED BY GOVERNOR DRAPER AT WINTHROP RALLY

Governor Eben S. Draper vigorously attacked the record of his opponent, Congressman Eugene N. Foss, at a Republican rally in Winthrop, He said at Mr. Foss' home town last night.

"When in the Republican party he tried to rule or ruin, and failed in both. Then as a Democratic Party he has tried to rule or ruin, and has succeeded in both."

White Draper spoke in Winthrop, Lieutenant-Governor Louis A. Frothingham, Congressman John W. Weeks, Former District Attorney Arthur D. Hill, Chairman Charles E. Hatfield of the Republican State Committee, and Hon. Frederick H. Gillett addressed rallies in Newton Newton Upper Falls and Needham.

Governor Draper said:

"Mr. Foss accepts the nomination of the Democratic party and in his letter of acceptance says that we are united.' and all his statements are to the effect that in accepting the happenings of the last week in the Democratic Party, for which he has been very largely responsible, will not affect the opinions of the people of Massachusetts in regard to the election.

Blames Foss for Split.

"To my mind there was never a greater illustration of the misunderstanding of Massachusetts people than this. In the political campaign preceding this nomination by the committee of Four to Select Mr. Vahey, he vigorously attacks through out the campaign on the ticket he is now responsible for the rise and triumph in the Democratic convention than any one man, he outrages the feelings of Mr. Mansfield, and this morning, when he has received this makeshift nomination, he calmly announces that Mr. Vahey and Mr. Hanlin will speak for him on Saturday that he hopes Mr. Mansfield will take the stump for him, and that now he having disrupted the Democratic party and gotten a shadow of a nomination for the highest office in the gift of the people all is serene and he will accept the decision and benefits of the oath he has treated so unfaithfully.

"Nobody in political life objects to a fair fight with clean hands and open methods, but if anything, lack of loyalty to friends and breaking promises were three Mr. Foss has plainly shown to all the people of the state.

Attacks Record in Congress.

"He afterward at one time was a candidate for delegate-at-large to the National Republican Convention, and conducted the campaign of a campaign pledge that he had for re-nomination to Congress and at was defeated in the convention.

"He went to Congress and for the first time in his long political career he had opposition in the district he served. The only things that I know of or that the people have noted in his record in Congress have been two. One was to register a vote on some measure in regard to the enforcement of the Sherman act, which has called down upon him the condemnation of Mr. Samuel Gompers, the president of the American Federation of Labor, and the labor men in the Commonwealth who are not personally interested in his campaign. His other great feat was to introduce a bill to advocate an alliance with Great Britain.

"To sum up his political record, when in the Republican party, he tried to rule or ruin, and failed in both. In the Democratic party he has tried to rule or ruin, and has succeeded in both."

Political Notes.

REGISTRATION—Old Court House, rear of City Hall, 9 a. m. to 5 p. m., except Saturdays, Saturdays, 9 a. m. to 1 p. m.

TODAY—Time for filing indorsement and nomination papers for district offices to be voted at State election, expires at 5 p. m.

Ward Rallies—Republican, Arena hall, Huntington; Roosevelt, Bates; Draper, Eagle; Company C Armory, Attleboro; Democratic, Mechanics' hall, Fall River.

TOMORROW—Night Rallies—Democratic, Temple and Faneuil Hall; Republican, Foss, Cassidy, Hanlin, Riley, Fitzgerald.

GRAND MONDAY—Foss begins tour of Cape Cod district.

NOVEMBER 8—State election.

Tom Riley of Malden pleased the Democrats of Meeting House Hill with a speech giving reasons why the Democratic candidates for the House of Representatives in Ward 20 should be supported. It was Riley's first appearance on the stump in Dorchester, and he made a fine impression.

Rumors have been flying thick and fast concerning the situation in the Ninth Congressional District. One that appears to be authentic has it that another John A. Keliher has been found in Ward 8 by the Lomasneyites who will be put into the field to take votes from the Congressman. It is an old trick and indicates that the Murray followers are not too confident of victory.

One newspaper has it that "Steve" is Howard Mudgett who is now on an independent Republican candidate for the Senate in the Ninth Suffolk District, opposing the Rev. Lemuel B. Smith. It will be news to Mudgett's friends to learn that he is a candidate. Michael J. Murray is the Democratic candidate in the district.

Like other shrewd politicians Joe (Bodo) Parker of Woburn was out fishing when the Democrats of his town decided to hand him the nomination for the Legislature, though he is in a district that is reputed to be Republican by 500 there is much betting that Parker will win. He has cut out a number of smoking engagements in order to wage a lively campaign.

* * *

Congressman O'Connell has taken the stump for Councilor Corley and is devoting his attention to attacking Frederick Galvin, the Republican candidate. He says that he is "after Corley's head and will stump the entire district for him."

* * *

"Talk it up for Egan" is the slogan of a committee from the Retail Clerks Association which is canvassing Ward 20 in the interest of James F. Egan, candidate for the House of Representatives in that Ward. Egan is president of the organization and a delegate to the Central Labor Union. He is making a personal house to house canvass in the Republican end of the Ward in his efforts to win.

Senator James H. INDIGESTION, SOURNESS, DYSPEPSIA AND ALL STOMACH MISERY GOES.

There would not be a case of indigestion here if readers who are subject to Stomach trouble knew the tremendous anti-ferment and digestive virtue contained in Diapepsin. This harmless preparation will digest a heavy meal without the slightest fuss or discomfort, also relieve the sourest acid stomach in five minutes. Besides overcoming all foul, Nauseous odors from the breath.

Ask your pharmacist to show you the formula plainly printed on each 50-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin, then you will readily understand why this promptly cures Indigestion and removes such symptoms as Heartburn, a feeling like a lump of lead in the stomach, Belching of Gas and Eructations of undigested food, water brash, Nausea, Headache, Biliousness and many other bad symptoms and, besides, you will see that the natives in keep your stomach, liver and intestines clean and fresh.

If your Stomach is sour and full of gas or your food doesn't digest, and your meals don't seem to fit, why not get a 50-cent case from your druggist and make life worth living? Absolute relief from Stomach misery and perfect digestion of anything you eat is sure to follow five minutes after, and, besides, one case is sufficient to cure a whole family of such trouble.

Surely, a harmless, inexpensive preparation like Diapepsin which will always, either at daytime or during night, relieve your stomach misery and assist your meals, is about as handy and valuable a thing as you could have in the house.

Democratic Campaign

BIG BOSTON RALLIES OPEN FOSS CAMPAIGN TO-MORROW NIGHT

The Democratic State campaign opens up with a bang to-morrow night in Boston. Tremont Temple and Faneuil Hall have been engaged for two big meetings, and options have been taken on two or three neighboring halls for possible overflow meetings.

Foss, Cassidy, Vahey, Hanlin, Keliher, Fitzgerald and a number of other spellbinders will speak. Sherman L. Whipple of Brookline, one of the leading lawyers in the State, will preside at Tremont Temple. Representative Thomas F. Riley of Malden is booked to swing the gavel for Faneuil Hall.

The "Dobbs" campaign got under way to-day with a dinner of Democratic ward committeemen and Democratic candidates for the Legislature in Ward 18, at the Quincy House. President Joseph A. Maynard of the City Committee, who is directing the Foss work in Boston, arranged the affair and Chairman Dennis A. Dinneen introduced the committeemen and candidates to the gubernatorial nominee before the dinner.

Hanlin will open the speaking arrangements by Chairman Frederick J. Macleod of the Democratic State Committee, and it is promised that next week will see the liveliest campaign the Massachusetts ever has known. A swing around the Cape is planned for early next week.

Foss On Ballot Twice.

It is definitely settled that Foss's name will appear on the ballot twice at the State election—once as a "Democrat" and once as a "Democratic Progressive." The latter designation, secured on independent nomination papers, was not withdrawn, although it has been announced that Foss would run only as a Democrat. The decision to hold the "Progressive" designation is said to be the result of sober second thought and the hope that more Republican recruits will be attracted to the Foss standard.

It will be optional with Mr. Foss as to which designation shall appear first on the ballot. In the event of his making no choice, it is probable that the Secretary of State will put the regular Democratic designation first.

Foss clubs are being formed all over the State and to-day Mr. Foss was busy greeting party leaders, answering telephone calls, telegrams and letters of reference to this phase of the campaign, as well as aiding the State committee with matters in matters of importance connected with the general plan of battle.

"I am more than ever convinced," he said, "that we shall win this fight. The Republican ranks are divided, and are weakened and will soon end it out. Harmony reigns and victory is our battle cry."

To Rely on Advertising.

In the eighteen days between now and the State election Mr. Foss will rely more on advertising than upon speeches to get at the voters. In other words he will try the campaign which carried William L. Douglas into the Governor's chair in 1904, with such variations as he finds best suited to present conditions.

To-morrow afternoon at 4 o'clock he will hold a reception at the Quincy House to all the candidates for the Legislature, county and district offices and members of city and town committees. There will be a dinner, but no set speeches.

On Monday night he is down for two speeches. Accompanied by Mayor Fitzgerald, he will address a rally at Hyde Park and also make a speech in the Cambridgeport Gymnasium.

A big rally has been arranged for Tuesday night in Worcester, but Mr. Foss will not be present. The speakers will include Mayor Fitzgerald, Charles S. Hamlin and James H. Vahey.

WASHINGTON PUPILS TO STUDY NEWSPAPERS

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21—The excellence of the daily newspaper as an exponent of current history is to be emphasized in the schools of the District of Columbia, especially in the normal and high schools, where the pupils will in the future be expected to read good newspapers daily as part of their curriculum.

In issuing the order the board adopts the idea of Professor George C. Pearson, who has always insisted that quizzes in current events, based on newspaper study should constitute a portion of the curriculum.

"Hilton Clothes Fit in the Difficult Places Where Most Clothes Don't"

EDDIE FOY,
Starring Under the Auspices of Messrs. Sam & Lee Shubert in "Up and Down Broadway."

A Hilton Model at $12.50

Is it too much to say that nearly all the spicy stage wit we hear originates in the fertile brain of Eddie Foy?

Certainly his genius for making people laugh is not surpassed on the American stage to-day.

Eddie Foy has a penchant for fine clothes—not loud or freaky attire, but clothes of striking originality in style and fabric and artful in design.

Hilton Ready-for-Service clothes appeal to Eddie Foy's fancy. They have nothing in common with ordinary ready-mades; indeed few custom-made products equal them in distinctiveness, fit and beauty.

And the wonderful part of it all is that Hilton Clothes actually cost less than the conventional ready-made!

Comparison is the test from which there is no appeal. Will you make it?

works on political economy and depended upon it to do its work.

"The public has not forgotten the kind of campaign he waged when chairman of the Republican State committee in the Robinson campaign against Butler. If ever money was used lavishly and to affect the votes, it was used by him in that campaign.

"The public has not forgotten the Shaw-Gardiner campaign for Congress when Senator Lodge's son-in-law practically covered the district with a blanket of banknotes, and expenditures ran up into the scores on scores of thousands of dollars.

"Senator Lodge and his son-in-law have done more to debauch and corrupt the electorate of Massachusetts by the lavish and uncalled for expenditure of money than any other two men in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, and there have been some pretty free spenders at that in the Republican party.

"Senator Lodge appeared as his political headquarters in Barristers Hall shortly after 10 o'clock to-day. He puffed a mild-looking cigar. While he talked circles of white smoke wreathed over his head.

"Well, he learn, "I see the Congressman and the made-to-order candidate for Governor is talking. And he's talking about the Senator.

"I'll have something to say about Mr. Foss at to-morrow's dinner, given by the Republican State Committee to the candidates. The dinner is at Hotel Somerset at 1 o'clock. I think I may have a great deal to say about Mr. Foss. Undisturbed? No. Let the made-to-order candidate talk."

CAMBRIDGE ASSESSOR GIVEN JAIL SENTENCE

Daniel Shaughnessy, sixty-six years old, of East Cambridge, for nine years one of the three principal assessors of the city of Cambridge, was to-day sentenced by Judge Almy in the Cambridge District Court to serve eight months in the House of Correction for larceny in four counts.

In all counts the offenses alleged were the misappropriation of tax abatement funds due women taxpayers of East Cambridge.

Shaughnessy appealed and was held in $500 bonds for the Superior Court.

The prosecution was brought about by the Taxpayers' Association as complainant, through its secretary, Reginald Mott Holt. The original charge was in five counts alleging larceny of $172 in all, from the following women:

Ellen L. Lloyd of No. 26 Sixth street, East Cambridge, $20; Mary A. Dolan of No. 229 Third street, $50; Margaret McCarthy of No. 84 Sixth street, $50; Frances Allen, a teacher in the 4th-s School, 32; Mary Leavey of No. 38 Jefferson street, $50.

At the hearing to-day, Ellen L. Lloyd did not appear and that count was dismissed. Judge Almy refused to impose a fine, which was asked for by Attorney John H. Hurley, who defended Shaughnessy, and even after the complaining woman had expressed a desire that no jail sentence be imposed.

Attorney Stockton Bell, who represented the Taxpayers Association, said that although a very dear friend of the son of the defendant, who is an attorney, he would nevertheless insist on sentence.

The balloon was nearing toward one of the most rugged and desolate sections of North America when last seen and was struggling low in the air.

TELEGRAPH MAN STOPS A SUICIDE

An unidentified man was prevented from jumping in front of an express train to-day at the Belmont station of the Boston & Albany railroad by Frank Stowes, telegraph operator at the station. Stowes saw the man standing in the middle of the track as an express was about to round the curve. He shouted, but the man paid no attention to him. He rushed upon the track and pulled him out of danger after a struggle.

SHELDON IS IN NEW YORK WITH MILLION

Federal officials who have been engaged in the search for Charles D. Sheldon, the Montreal Banker and broker, who as a broker in Montreal is believed to have stolen $1,500,000 from hundreds of investors, were to-day satisfied to learn that the search has almost ended in New York city.

Reports from the central office officials in New York indicate that Sheldon and his wife are in hiding there. He is believed to have the vast amount of money stolen by him still in his possession.

For some time after the broker's disappearance from Montreal he was believed to be in this city. At the request of the Canadian officials detectives from the Department of Justice were assigned to the case and they have been searching the city for weeks. Even a fine tooth comb were that Sheldon was in Newton or some of the adjacent suburbs.

The indications when read to the effect that Sheldon is in New York are confirmed by letters mailed as late as October 13 from the Hudson and Thirteenth street post office. Sheldon also bought tickets for New York when he left Montreal last Sunday.

The victims of the Montreal broker are said to number into the thousands. His plan was to get sums from investors on the pretext of investing the money for them. At first he would find only small sums, but later he raised the limit to $100 and before he left he had made the amount $500.

"ELIJAH" SANFORD MUST REPAY LOAN

LYNN, Oct. 21.—A report filed to-day by M. E. Dorman, as master in chancery, orders the Rev. Frank Sanford, the "Elijah" of the Holy Ghost and Us society of Shiloh, Me., to pay $1,753 and interest from July 19, 1905, to the Rev. Ira Case of this city, an aged minister who lent the leader of the Shilohites that sum to aid in the fitting out of the Bark Kingdom, which carried the Maine colony to the Holy Land. Mr. Case, who is seventy-seven years of age and nearly blind, alleged that he was induced by the head of Sanford upon a promise of a high seat among the elders at Shiloh Tem. the temple of the end.

STORM-BELATED SHIPS IN PORT

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.—Steamships from southern ports are here to-day, after battling experiences with the hurricane that swept over Cuba, Florida and Georgia, but two others are overdue because of the storm. One of the ships, the Brazos of the Mallory line, which was due on Tuesday, and over which some anxiety was beginning to be felt, notified the company here to-day that the storm had been weathered safely and that she would arrive on Sunday.

The only ship not heard from is the Comanche, a freight vessel of the Texas City Steamship Company. She left Galveston October 12, and is one day late.

HEINZE'S IRE IS STIRRED IN COURT ROOM

There was a hot clash in the Supreme Court to-day, when F. Augustus Heinze, millionaire copper magnate, accused Henry H. Jones, lawyer, of misquoting his testimony.

Mr. Jones was cross-examining Mr. Heinze on the Heinze suit against several Boston directors to recover $3,000,000 which Mr. Heinze had invested in the United Copper Company.

Mr. Heinze had admitted paying $1,500 to Thomas W. Lawson one month before Mr. Lawson's New York broker made an A. C. Heinze.

Mr. Heinze Shows Temper.

Mr. Jones was pressing the witness in an effort to show that he was in hard straits for money at that time, when Heinze interrupted with a question of his own.

"You are misquoting my testimony and did not quote me correctly in your own use. I instructed it for a New York broker a friend named H. Hamilton Hardy."

Mr. Rattenberry said he might say that he sent all $3,000 to Lawson.

"Yes, all none of it was for my own," replied Heinze, his eyes flashing.

Some Bank Book Secrets.

Mr. Heinze had previously testified that he always had on hand from two to three million dollars more or less. Mr. Jones, in cross-examination, began to show that this was not so, that Heinze was browbeating money and that he owed a great deal of interest at high rate per cent. On his direct examination Heinze testified that he considered $1,000 per month an exorbitant price for money borrowed.

Mr. Jones's line of cross-examination showed that Heinze had paid New York brokers as high as five per cent. per month for loans of the same time that he was borrowing in Boston.

Heinze, in his own name, has the card for Boston brokers to get the collateral from A. D. Adams. It must have known that Adams had no legal right to dispose of it, as Heinze was paying five per cent. per month for the money borrowed.

WOMEN WHO NEED STRENGTH

Will Be Interested in the Story of This Kansas City Woman.

After Years of Terrible Suffering She Tried Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and Became Well and Strong Again.

Miss Florence Whitehouse, a music teacher, of No. 506 Oakley avenue, Kansas City, Mo., found Dr. Williams' Pink Pills exactly suited to her case and her cure should encourage other women to give those pills a trial. She says:

"A few years ago I was afflicted with weakness, which followed a severe attack of malaria. I had severe pains through the small of my back and could hardly move around. It seemed that every bone in my body was sore. I was chilled through all of the time. During the hottest days of summer I would have to dress with heavy clothing. I was just like a skeleton and kept losing flesh. I would have terrible headaches. My heart felt as though it was whirling around. My people thought I was going into consumption and I did not care whether I lived or not. I was sick for nearly six years.

"I was under the care of a doctor for a time, but he did me no good. I was about all. I could see no improvement under his treatment and, as a last resort, my people sent me to Excelsior Springs, Mo., thinking that the water there might help me. I did not improve much but while there I heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and as soon as I arrived home I began to take them. I could see a quick change after a short trial. I told my doctor what I was taking and he advised me to continue with them. He said they put fat my case. I took the pills until I became well and strong again and I have since been in good health. I cheerfully recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to weak women."

Two helpful booklets, "Diseases of the Blood" and "Plain Talks to Women," giving more information about the remedy will be sent free on a postal card request.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all druggists, or will be sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents per box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y. The genuine are sold only in packages bearing the full trade-mark, "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

ROBBINS-OPPER STOCK EXCHANGE FIRM SUSPENDS

The failure of the stock exchange firm of Robbins & Oppen was announced today at No. 60 State street and also on the floor of the Consolidated Stock Exchange in New York. The cause of the failure, it was stated, was excessive extension of credit to customers. It was said that the liabilities would not be heavy.

Attorney Samuel M. Levy, junior for the firm in New York, made the following statement:

"The cause of the present embarrassment was excessive extensions of credit to customers. Mr. Robbins was in charge of its Boston office and Mr. Opper was the general manager. The condition of affairs first came to Mr. Opper's attention last week when he went to Boston to take charge of the office, owing to the illness of Mr. Robbins. The firm was organized April 20, 1909. It is understood that the liabilities are not heavy.

The following statement was given out in Boston by J. J. Robbins, another member of the firm:

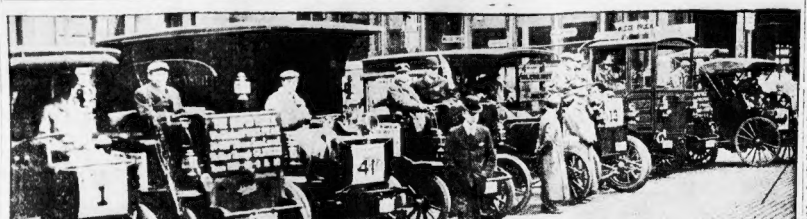
"The cause of the present embarrassment was the excessive extension of credit to customers. The liabilities are not heavy.

"Mr. Robbins was in charge of the Boston office and Mr. A. Opper is the general manager at New York. The firm does not hold membership in the Boston Stock Exchange. The partnership was formed on April 20, 1909. We are aware of the exact liabilities, but do not care to make any statement regarding the amount at this time."

Both Mr. Robbins and his partner, Mr. Opper, are New Yorkers.

A New York dispatch says that the liabilities are less than $10,000. It is understood that the firm has available assets sufficient to pay over 60 per cent of its obligations.

AUTO TRUCKS ASSEMBLED FOR START OF BIG RUN



Snapshot of group of auto trucks today in Winthrop square just before leaving for Cottage Farm bridge to begin two days' reliability run.

FORTY-SEVEN AUTOS OFF ON RELIABILITY TEST FOR TWO DAYS.

H. C. Davis, for nineteen years the city weigher. This morning at 7 o'clock the machines lined up for the second weighing in Haymarket square. But this morning each carried the maximum load, which the carriage of the manufacturer sets forth as the machine's capacity.

Met by Pilot Cars.

The cars carried enough gasoline to take them to the bridge, where the official start was made. After leaving Haymarket square the heavy machines rumbled down to Winthrop square where they were met by the pilot cars used by the newspapermen and the judges. The committee in charge of the run consists of Louis R. Speare, Harry W. Knight, A. B. Peck and E. A. Gilmore.

At Winthrop square Referee Knight looked over the cars, and gave out the positions and the numbers to the various drivers. The cars then started for Cottage Farm, going up Summer and Winter streets to Tremont, to Royston to Arlington to Beacon, to the bridge.

At this point a stop was made and the judges filled and sealed the gasoline tanks. The forty-seven cars were divided into five classes, with an owner's division. Class A for machines not exceeding 1,000 pounds, class B those under 3,000 pounds, class C those under three tons, class D not more than four tons, and class E five tons. The entrants in the owners' division were trucks from the Henry Siegel Company, Smith Bros., A. Shuman Company, John Wanamaker, J. S. Nelson, George Batchelor, William Mahoney, Abbott Miller, Eastern Avenue Garage and the Treat Hardware Company.

Shortly after 9 o'clock the start was made. Some time before that, however, the M. I. T. contingent had shot down the road, leaving a trail of fine paper. The judges followed at the Dole cycles and sent one away every thirty seconds.

Will Post Scores.

The route finished good roads, the careening in station for the end of the day's run being at Newburyport. Here the cars are again to be filled with gasoline, careful measurement being made of the exact amount needed by each, or, in other words, the exact amount used in making the run. Careful inspection is to be made and the scores for the first day will then be posted.

The start from Newburyport on the last leg will start early to-morrow. The route lies toward Haverhill, the second weighing being taken at the Dole cycles at Old Town Green.

The route for the two days includes Lowell, Lawrence, Haverhill, Gloucester, Salem and Lynn. At each city officials will be wished and thus the business men of those cities will have unlimited opportunity to see the various makes of cars entered and will be able to form a true estimate of their reliability and value as a business proposition.

One of the most interesting features of the test is the rivalry between C. Burton and J. Thatcher, drivers of the trucks used by the Henry Siegel Company stores of this city and the John Wanamaker store of Philadelphia.

The Wanamaker Car.

The Wanamaker car is an Auto car and won second place in the Philadelphia reliability run. When Mr. Wanamaker, head of the concern conducting the BOSTON AMERICAN, he urged his drivers to prepare to enter the car in this run, since the valuable silver trophy offered by the AMERICAN proved a temptation which could not be resisted.

The fact that the Henry Siegel Company had entered an Auto Car machine in the run was naturally a cause for further interest. Both of these cars have done excellent service in the delivery work of the big stores, which are in active competition in New York.

It was thought at first that the Wanamaker car would be shipped to this city. But Thatcher, its driver, only said, "Why, the run up to Boston would be a mere canter, for this machine ... drive it over. I guess ... Wednesday ... and said he was all ready then to start flight of after the prize. And the appearance of his machine gave every evidence that he was in earnest.

Another car, however, made fully as long an overland trip in reaching the scene for the big contest to-day. This was the Velie truck, entered in Class C by the Velie Motor Truck Company of Buffalo, N. Y.

Through the Berkshires.

The car was driven through central New York State to Albany and from there through the Berkshires to Boston by C. E. Shaw. Mr. Shaw's car was overhauled yesterday soon after its arrival. He said that there was not a single readjustment to be made. Continuing he said: "I'd hate to say how little gasoline the truck needed in the long trip. Somebody would only raise their eyebrows and ask how much for air I carried in the tires. But I hope to show them in the real test. The cups offered by the AMERICAN are among the finest I have seen and the chance to try them was worth the long trip over here."

The object of the run held to-day is to demonstrate to the business men not only of Boston and vicinity but to the country at large that the automobile truck is not only highly practical, but that to-day is first demonstrating that it is more efficient and more economical than the horse. These cars are not put calculated to do a small job on one trip, for they carry more than their own weight. Most of the cars in class A carry a half ton and from that up to the five tons cars the ratio is about the same, the latter carrying exactly five tons.

Largest Run of Kind.

The BOSTON AMERICAN run, as is known, is the largest one of gasoline cars to be held in America since the manufacture of gasoline power trucks and delivery wagons was attempted.

One other contest for such vehicles has been held and many machines were entered than in the BOSTON AMERICAN run. However, electric machines were used and the number of gasoline entries was much smaller than the number entered in to-day's trial.

One of the late cars to arrive yesterday was a Garford truck, entered in class C, and one of the best machines which the W. A. Buxton Machine Company has ever exhibited. It made the run from Worcester, a distance of about forty miles, in three hours. No attempt was made to cut down the time, since the roads in some places were slippery and the drivers wished to take every precaution against accident.

A. B. Peck was one of the most interested of the contest committee when the run out to the starting point opened to-day. He is well known as an official in many meets and his keen eye took in every detail of the various machines.

He said: "This is a great contest, great because it represents not a sham race against time and death, but an honest effort to show industrial and mechanical advancement.

"It seems but a few years ago that the sceptical were refusing to believe that electric cabs could be run in our cities. What would be the thought of our forefathers if to-day they could look down on these great, powerful wagons, some of them drawing over five tons or 10,000 pounds, and moving along quietly without a hint of the source of their motive power. To me the contest means a great success, and in view of its importance and fact that the handsome trophies added largely to arousing interest, I feel that the BOSTON AMERICAN should be congratulated."

Results of the scores at the close of the first day's run will be posted in all leading garages about the city to-night, and, as the big cars approach the city to-morrow, a number of the interested owners and friends of entrants will go out to meet them and escort them to the finish line.

POLICE HUNT HOUGH'S NECK INCENDIARY

Following a series of early morning fires which have destroyed or damaged cottages at Hough's Neck, Chief Peter Williams of the Quincy fire department to-day conferred with Chief of Police Burrell of Quincy, and with the office of the State Fire Marshal, for the purpose of an investigation and hunt for a firebug. Chief Williams declared to-day that he had no doubt all the fires had been set.

Another fire early to-day destroyed the one and a half story unoccupied frame cottage, owned by John Ingram of Roxbury. The loss was $1,000. A high wind sent sparks into the heart of the cottage colony, starting a score of roof fires. All were quickly put out.

The flames were first seen by Mrs. Walter Buchan, who woke her husband. The cottage burned quickly, so that the women had to turn their attention to saving the surrounding cottages.

Early yesterday a cottage on Sea street, Hough's Neck, was burned.

MELLEN TAKES B. & M. OUT OF POLITICS

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 21.—A death blow is dealt the famous railroad lobby of the New Hampshire Legislature by President Charles S. Mellen of the Boston & Maine railroad, who in a speech before the Wonolancet Club declared that the company is going to take its hands off politics in this State.

Here is his pledge to the State of New Hampshire: "We will do away with the lobby, in the sense in which that term is commonly used.

"At the end of the next legislative session there will be no complaint about interference with any of any lobby employed in our interest.

"We shall not interfere in any way with the election of members of the Legislature, or of any of the public officers.

"We shall not give or offer to any public officer, directly or indirectly, any consideration which shall tend to influence him in the performance of his public duties."

His speech has created a tremendous interest throughout the State. It was his first appearance in Concord since he left there as a boy to seek his fortune. Prominent men from all over the State, in the time Prosper swears, the offer was made to him Schroeder was a member of the Board of Quarantine Commissioners and a district leader in the Senate district in Brooklyn, then represented at Albany by Fowler. Schroeder's term at Sing Sing will expire within the next six months, and it is said the committee is prepared to promise him immediate pardon, with restoration of citizenship, if he will make a frank and complete confession giving the name of the man who authorized him to offer the bribe in question.

A MYSTERY SOLVED

For years medical men have been seeking a cure for eczema, the most common and most stubborn of skin diseases. Some said it was a blood disease; some said it was the result of indigestion. It remained for one studious chemist to settle beyond any question that eczema in many forms is a skin disease and related in no way to a disordered condition of the blood. This same chemist experimented with many antiseptic, healing and soothing agents, but it was not until he formed the compound Cadum that he at last realized he had given to the world something that would bring relief or cure to hundreds of sufferers. Cadum ranks to-day with the great discoveries of the medical world. Its action is so positive that the itching of eczema is stopped at once. People who have itched and scratched for years find sleep and rest soon after Cadum is applied. Cadum is sold by all druggists at 10c and 25c. a box. It is for eczema in all its forms, also for pimples, blotches, itch, tetter, scaly skin, eruptions, chafings, psoriasis, rash, sores, scurvy, scabs, itching piles, etc.

A hearing in the Federal District Court today was for the purpose of selecting proper counsel for Rogins Mackalan, the Lowell Armenian charged with the killing of Mohammed Ahmed and the wounding of Ahmed Noory on the steps of the Lowell postoffice, September 24.

A new provision of the Federal law is that the District Attorney shall approve of counsel for the defence in murder trials. Mackalan had engaged counsel of his own, Philip Rubenstein and Miran Sevasly. These were approved by the District Attorney. The trial opens a week from today.

ANOTHER GOTHAM GIRL WINS ONE OF BOSTON'S DESIRABLE "CATCHES"

By ELIZABETH ELLIOTT.

Miss Angela de Acosta, who in marrying Boston man, is following the lead of her handsome sister, Maria, now Mrs. A. Robeson Sargent, has announced that her wedding to William G. Sewall of this city is to take place on November 15. Mr. Sewall is likewise following the example of so many of our most desirable "catches" in marrying a Gotham girl rather than one of our cultured Boston maids. In fact, as some debutants of last Winter complained, the New York girls are getting the best of Boston's eligible scions of wealth and all the Boston girls can do about it is just send aside and let them. At any rate invitations for the Sewall-de Acosta wedding are being sent out and the "overlooked" Boston girls are preparing to welcome another fascinating young New York bride into their midst. The marriage is to take place at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Ricardo de Acosta, in Madison avenue, New York. Miss de Acosta will make the most charming of brides, as she is of a family of handsome women, being a sister of Mrs. Philip M. Lydig, Mrs. Oren Root and Mrs. A. Robeson Sargent.

Mr. Sewall is a son of the late William R. Sewall, of Boston, and a graduate of Harvard. Mr. Sewall will take his bride to South Africa, where they will make their future home.

The Richard H. Danas who spent the Summer at Dana's Beach, Manchester, have returned and are occupying their suburban estate on Brattle street, Cambridge. Miss Elizabeth Dana, whose home is also on Brattle street, has just arrived there from her Summer home in East Bay Lodge, Osterville. The William Taggard Pipers, who were at Falmouth, Cape Cod, for the Summer, have also opened their house on Brattle street.

That interesting young couple, Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Gardiner, Jr., whose marriage took place in September, are so making their future home in Dedham, where they will be decidedly welcome additions to the exclusive little colony already there. Mrs. Gardiner was formerly Elizabeth Denby of Chestnut Hill. The Gardiners have leased the estate of Mrs. Joshua Crane, who is at present making her home with Mr. and Mrs. Joshua Crane, Jr., at their country place, "Ice Hill," Westwood.

+ + +

The Charles A. Proctors, who, after closing their Summer home, "Lodge Keisley," at Swampscott, went on a motor tour through the White Mountains, are now at their Winter home on Gloucester street.

George Abbott James has closed his Nahant Summer home, Lowland House, and has returned to town. His son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Ellerton James, who have been with him for part of the Summer, are now at their suburban estate in Milton.

+ + +

Mr. and Mrs. F. L. W. Richardson, who spent the Summer in Matinpoisett, are to spend the mild-Winter with the latter's mother, Mrs. Arthur Dyland Blake, at her home in Brookline. Mr. and Mrs. William G. Nickerson, the latter Mrs. Richardson's sister, are making a longer stay than usual at their place in New Boston. They were also with Mrs. Blake at her Matinpoisett villa for the mid-Summer. Mr. Richardson is secretary of the new Chilton Club.

+ + +

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Cunningham and their trio of interesting daughters, the Misses Harriet, Constance and Susanne Cunningham, have returned from their villa at Newport and are again at their home in Longwood. The Misses Welde of Chestnut Hill have also returned from Newport.

+ + +

MORE SYSTEM IS URGED FOR NEW SUBWAYS

A comprehensive plan of subways for the city of Boston, instead of the present plan of building separately for immediate needs is wanted by the Chamber of Commerce. The directors feel that the planning of the city's underground transportation system ought to be done by a permanent board and that the whole work ought to be done with an eye to the future needs of the city.

At their meeting the directors approved a report of the public utilities committee outlining the need for such a plan, made after full investigation of the needs of the whole city and capable of meeting the requirements of the future.

The members of the chamber will meet Thursday, at 3 p. m., in the library of the chamber building, to discuss and act upon this report, which is considered far reaching and important.

The committee recommended "that the chamber take such action as will result in a thorough and comprehensive report as to the present and prospective transportation needs, and as to how far those needs will be met by the changes already contemplated by statute, and as to whether they would be better met by different or further changes; also that the joint commission, or some other permanent board, be charged with the duty of making progressive studies and recommendations as to the transportation needs of the metropolitan district from time to time, and the best means of meeting those needs."

Because they believe this comprehensive study and plan should be made, the committee and the directors also recommended that no action be taken by the chamber at present in favor of the proposed West End loop, the proposed Boylston street subway, or any other subway proposition advanced for the benefit of any particular district.

GARDNER READY FOR KLAUS BOUT

Anyone who doubted Jimmy Gardner's connections in training for his fight against Frank Klaus next Tuesday should visit the Armory club gymnasium this afternoon and see what he will go through his work. Gardner refused to go back to the country to train because he wanted to stay right in town where no one could see him at work.

He looks in better physical condition than he has for a long time, and from his training quarters with a rush that shows he possesses all his old strength and ability.

Klaus will arrive here Monday morning and he is always on time. The Armory club members are planning something sensational next Tuesday night, the whole program looks good. It is the intention of being the equal to, if not excel the famous evening when Langford and Jeanette performed.

ST. ALPHONSUS TO MEET REVERE TEAM

The Massachusetts State Football League will open it's season tomorrow afternoon when the eleven representing the Revere A. A. and the St. Alphonsus A. A. of Roxbury meet on Curtis Field, Revere Beach.

The Revere team is composed of many of the former high school stars of the local high school and had a record last year of not meeting defeat. The team has been strengthened this year and the players hope to have the honor of the State championship.

The St. Alphonsus team is equally as strong as the team from the seashore town and the game promises to be a hard fought one.

"The Girl in the Train" whom we were to meet at the Globe Theatre Monday night. This "girl" was imported from Germany, by the way of London—rather a very easy route—and this "girl" was freighted with very complex, catchy and captivating music, which it was up to the girl to deliver, and the delivery of which meant that the girl didn't deliver. She trembled and tottered. It was a very difficult operetta by Victor Leon and Leo Fall, called "The Girl in the Train," and it was a delightful operetta.

Leon and Fall are the composers who are responsible for "The Dollar Princess," "The Merry Widow" and "The Count of Luxembourg," and the music of "The Girl in the Train" is carefully, delightfully and ingeniously written. It is no wonder that "The Girl in the Train" had a quiet time of it.

Yet it is a very charming and original work. Leo Fall's music is superior to that of "The Dollar Princess," and is full of melody and rhythm, and ingenuity, and the numbers are delicious, there is a delightful ballette, and a very admirable finale. Also, the story of "The Girl in the Train" is capitally told, and quite independent of the music, and is quite as much of a musical comedy in itself.

Why monkey with things that are already hampered with the

SOME TAILORS TELL US BUSINESS IS BAD—

Several of the highclass tailoring firms tell us that business has been poor for the past two weeks. They blame it onto the warm and unseasonable weather and seem surprised that our books are showing a big increase over last year.

But there may be other things than weather to account for present conditions. Thinking men may be considering the enormous rents paid in the congested shopping districts. They may be wondering if they are contributing more than is necessary to some of the landed proprietors—the real estate over-lords of Boston.

Our rent is modest. We are out of the prohibitive district—we are systematized in our work—we are represented on the floor by Mr. Gale and Mr. Kent personally—we buy and sell for cash—and we will make to your order the best suit or overcoat you ever wore for $15 to $25.

The clothes we make bear every imprint of stylish tailoring—you don't have to tell people you are wearing a tailor-made suit when you wear our clothes. Woman's Sense of Honor

By WINIFRED BLACK

MR. BOOTH TARKINGTON, who ought to know what he is talking about, declares that women have a [illegible] woman.

Mr. Tarkington [illegible] this back of a key. [illegible] In the first [illegible] and in the next [illegible] of the woman friend [illegible] them.

[illegible], that women have a [illegible] less keen [illegible] than men. They do have a different [illegible]

But [illegible] you let a woman [illegible] a message or two addressed [illegible] and see if you don't find [illegible] out where they are from and what they [illegible] to pick them up for the [illegible] And you get so many more letters than [illegible] increase a dozen letters, but [illegible] otherwise, to one that comes through the mail [illegible] wife.

Why [illegible] mother goes into the sewing room to make a new dress for [illegible] afraid the baby will get his fingers hurt in the sewing machine [illegible] pick up a paper of needles and try to eat it, so she locks [illegible] sewing room and stays there and does her work alone.

BABY'S CURIOSITY

The [illegible] onders and wonders what in the world she is doing in that room with the door closed and what the wonderful something is that make such a strange humming song, and so he sits down on the floor and holds his chubby [illegible] back and tries to peep through the keyhole or over the sill, not because he has no sense of honor, but because he loves her so and wants to know just exactly what she is doing and how she does it every minute of the day.

It doesn't make me cross with the baby to come out and find him leaning on hard against the door that I can hardly open it.

It makes me sorry for him.

I don't want to scold him for his lack of "keen sense of honor." I want to take him in and tell him how much I love him and do my best to make him forget everything but [illegible] he was while I was [illegible] in the room making a little [illegible] for him.

It [illegible] mother doesn't wonder what she is doing when he is fast asleep [illegible]

[illegible] and somehow that makes it all so different, don't you think so, Mr. Tarkington?

WOMEN DON'T NEED FRIENDS

And then, the woman friend who is deserted by the other woman. To begin with, women really don't need friends at all when they have a husband and [illegible] Acquaintances, associates pleasant companions—yes.

As to friends, a woman knows, and knows instinctively, that the only real [illegible] in the world are her husband and her children and the love for both and from both.

And then, Why ponder deep problems about Susan Jones for a friend she does it because she likes Susan Jones appears to be. If Susan Jones runs away with Kitty Robinson's husband, Mary Smith drops Susan's acquaintance.

Of course, Susan isn't the sort of woman she thought she was, and why should she go on liking her.

If John [illegible] friend he picks him out because he is a good [illegible] for some other equally logical reason.

When Billy runs away with Tom Robinson's wife, John Smith doesn't drop Billy at all. He goes fishing with him just the same, only he may slip home a little ahead of time to see if Tom Robinson's wife is quite as partial to Billy as Billy thinks she is.

Different senses of honor, Mr. Tarkington, different—not less keen, if you please.

FAMOUS IN A DAY FOR THE BEAUTY OF HER HANDS AND ARMS

A Free Prescription That Does Its Work Over Night—You Can Prepare It at Your Own Home

"It's my own discovery, and it takes just one night to get such marvelous results," answers Miss Grace Brown, when her friends ask her about the marvelous change in the appearance of her hands and arms. "And it is the one thing I know if you will take my advice," she says, "I feel it my duty to tell every woman what this wonderful prescription did for me. Just think of it, it did all this in a night. It affords me a real pleasure to tell anyone else just how such remarkable results were brought about. It will give you, absolutely free, the identical prescription which has removed every defect from my hands and arms. You can form no idea of the marvelous change it will make in just one application. The prescription, which can be prepared at your own home, is as follows: Go to any drug store and buy an empty two-ounce bottle and also a one-ounce bottle of Kuhn's Compound. Pour the entire bottle of Kuhn into the two-ounce bottle, add a quarter ounce of witch hazel and fill with water. Mix this at home, then you know that it is the genuine article. Apply night and morning. The first application will astonish you. It makes the skin transparent, removes all discolorations such as tan, sun spots, freckles and coarse pores, roughness and wrinkles, and in fact every blemish the hands and arms are heir to. It also produces a marvelous effect on the neck and shoulders. If the neck is also scrawny from being exposed to the sun or from wearing high collars, this prescription will immediately relieve that condition. No matter how rough and ugsanly the hands and arms, or what abuses they have had through hard work and exposure to sun and wind, this prescription will work a wonderful transformation in 12 hours at the most. Thousands of women are using this prescription with just the same results that I have had."

FUN WITH FATHER-IN-LAW.

That there is not much in a name after all was conclusively proved smashingly a day or so ago, when a prominent business man here received a postal from his son and daughter-in-law saying:

"We are on our way to Hell, but it's not as hot as you would expect."

"More than that," continued the post card, "it's as easy to get out of as to get into."

The news came as quite a surprise to the man, as, knowing his son and daughter-in-law, he scarcely pictured them on their way to the infernal regions. It turns out, however, that Hell is a village in Norway of 1,200 inhabitants, and is in no wise a rival to its namesake.

"It wouldn't mind it at all," declares the recipient of the news, "if he only hadn't sent it on a post card."

SHADOWS

He lifts the glass that glorifies all commonplace affairs
That drives away the dismal day of doubts, and fears and cares.
Beyond him Pleasure seems to wait, he hears her siren call,
And only we who watch can see the shadow on the wall.

She hears the maddening applause: the crowd calls out her name
And with the sound her life is crowned, she dreams her dream of fame.
The castle that her hopes have reared she thinks will never fall,
And only we who watch can see the shadow on the wall.

NINETEENTH INSTALMENT

He showed her into a room on the first floor and closed the door. His expression had changed. It was serious looking and worried; it almost seemed to the housekeeper as though he expected to hear bad news.

"Now, Mrs. Mac—what brought you here? You look portentously gloomy. No bad news—if there is—out with it—no mouthing it, like a good soul. I can't abide it."

She did not mouth it. She told her story with a directness that he could not have excelled, the story of the search and the want of something carried away from the flat, and added the story of her own fears and suspicions.

Fleury shrugged his great shoulders; his face was flushed no longer, was pale. Looking up and seeing the old Cyrus back on him, dim with tears, he rose suddenly, put his arm about the woman in a curiously boyish way.

"I'll do all I can—in the meantime the first and only thing to do is to let him know. There's no danger—he has nothing to fear—only it is right that he should be forewarned—we must write at once."

She would have spoken, but he motioned her with his hand to remain seated and silent, while he drew a scribbling block toward him and began to write a message rapidly in French. It was altered several times before he had it to his satisfaction, but at last he stood up, folding the paper in his fingers.

"We'll send this, Mrs. Mac," he said. "We'll get a taxi round the corner and save time in the end."

And presently the taxicab whirled them on through the traffic of City road into the heart of the city, away from the Grand house in Clerkenwell, and from the red-haired girl whom they had both forgotten.

Two telegrams were received that evening at the small post office in Marl: Mrs. Crest, the grey-haired postmistress, who had learned the mysteries of the Morse code late in life, transcribed the longer and more difficult one first—Irma, filled with many pauses and interjections, because it was in a foreign language and a cramped hand of the imaginative order.

Mrs. Garwood, to whom the telegram was delivered, looked at it for some moments dispiritedly, and then placed it with a certain solemnity on the table where it lay, in orange splash, vivid against the speckled cloth.

It was still lying there when nearly three-quarters of an hour later Mrs. Garwood passed through the sitting room to answer a series of knocks on the front door.

"Mr. Jardine at home?" The caller of two long, lanky and tanned, dressed in a suit of heavy serge suit, raised his straw hat as he put the question.

"No, sir," Mrs. Garwood's face, ruddy and wrinkled like an apple skin, stiffened. "He's his own young man, sir."

The men glanced at each other, and the man who had not hitherto spoken put the question.

"You expect him back?"

"I should hope so, sir." Mrs. Garwood folded her fins discreetly.

"Then—" over her shoulder the taller man had caught a glimpse of the orange blur of the telegram against the dark wood of the table, and of the small post office seal. Obviously, lightened. "Ah, I see he didn't get my wire," he hastened. "That's unlucky. I suppose we may come in and wait for him?"

"Sure."

She drew on seals for them, dusted a couple of cushions on the tall old brass sticks on the mantelpiece and left them there.

From fingering the telegram as it lay on the table, one of the men had taken it into his hands and now he drew a slim pencil from his pocket and, inserting the pointed edge beneath the upper flap of the loosely stuck envelope, cautiously inserted the entire length and began pulling it gently and dexterously up and down.

That does it," he said. "The dap and come up intact—his hand, and now he opened Fleury's telegram on the table before him.

For a moment or two its contents baffled him, but presently a recollection of his juvenile studies in French returned to him and he picked out enough to understand the gist of the subtly worded warning.

Quickly he looked up with a quick smile, refolding the envelope down it on cop. "The luck's against our man, Will-ams. If he had got this I'd be thinking we ought to be after him to McAndrew's desk, but now—we can wait here easy. Well get our third right enough—he's not been warned."

RICHARD JARDINE, walking at a brisk pace along the dusty road to Ward Luxwood, knew nothing of the visitors who waited for him in the White cottage. He was bound for McAndrew's balloon sheds, where he had spent a good deal of his time during the last few days. McAndrew had paid his first visit to the cottage that morning, and had been rather insistent about him coming over this evening.

"I'm going to make my flight tonight, Dick," he said, "unless it rains to such a gale that it would be sheer madness. By night or never! I've lived back for long. I could have made an ascent any night this week; I could go up now—the atmosphere's perfect; only I want to wait till night—for the darkness to cover me."

The airship was free of the shed by the time he reached it. Out in the open it seemed to him less immense than it had done in the gloom of the shed. Large still, but not overwhelmingly so, as it had seemed on the first day when it had loomed up above him like some bloated, prehistoric monster. As a matter of fact, the "Goliath" was small for its type, a little more than one hundred feet long and eighteen feet in diameter amidships.

"Eh, Dick, you've come," the latter said, "she's a beauty! Sad to be gone—as I'm mad to be with her!" McAndrew laid his hand caressingly on the light rail of the carrier frame as he might have laid it on some living thing. "You're coming, man? You're not such a fool as to refuse a chance in a thousand?"

The man's face was transfigured, his eyes alone, there was about him an air of indescribable excitement that communicated itself to Jardine inexplicably, as the temper of the audience communicates itself across the footlights to the players on the stage. He had not come there with any intention of making the ascent, and yet, as he stood there, he felt all at once swept out of himself on the wings of McAndrew's enthusiasm.

"Of course, I'm going up," he said.

"Good man!" In a moment of emotional excess McAndrew gripped his hand.

The Flight

Despite the excitement there was no flurry; without any show of haste the preparations were accomplished quickly and silently, and the time of waiting seemed very short to Jardine. He felt strangely about by a strange sense of unreality when at length, with the little portable lamp fastened to the lapel of his coat, he climbed on board and took his seat in the car behind McAndrew and heard his hand command to set free.

For the first fraction of time it seemed to Jardine that the supremely ridiculous had happened; that the dirigible had refused even to rise from its moorings.

Then, with a sudden upbringing of the heart, such a sensation as he had never before experienced, with a mad singing in his ears, he realized that the Goliath had swept into the air.

For a second it hung, its propeller revolving slowly to keep its head to the wind, then, with its prow turned in the direction of the railway line as Guildford, it sailed on, moving so rapidly with that vibrating movement of the dirigible that is so curious a blend of the sensational motion of the balloon and the vivid, living vibration of the motor car, that none but she could only be to the watchers, who barely two minutes since had released a monster, a faint, dark, hardly visible shape.

No more than that to other watchers also, who, weary of waiting for the return of a man in the white dot of a cottage by the lake, had strolled out into the scented, sleeping garden to dim and imagined a shape that only the faint whirr of the engines 1,000 feet above their heads seemed then to look up, straining their eyes.

Toward the Sea

"By Jove, there goes McAndrew's airship, Williams!" one of the pigmy, pointing shapes said to the other. "He's made his flight at last. Now we mustn't be long—our man won't wait up at the sheds there all night, I reckon."

Above Guilford, beyond Rodhill, after skirting many golden points of light, the dirigible moved on speedily, its engines racing and throbbing like the roar of blood in the ears. Moving steadily and certainly under McAndrew's quivering hand on the motor along secure country roads. With the wind behind her now she moving farther out toward Folkestone, with its myriad lights on toward something that spread vast and ever whitening far in the south to which their prow was turned—toward the sea, gray velvet, foam crowns outlined with little crinkling edges of white foam.

Jardine was conscious that the motion of the car, hitherto so uniformly steady, had changed.

It had become swaying and reeling, a nauseous movement; he shouted fiercely to McAndrew and learned in reply that there was no cause for alarm; it was only some trivial stoppage of the petrol feed that must be remedied before they ventured over the water.

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 21.—It has been announced the street car men have decided to empower the executive committee to call a strike against the Pittsburg Street Railways Company if the company persists in what the men declare to be a discrimination against union men. The Pittsburg Street Railways Company controls all the street car traffic in Pittsburg.

CORPORATIONS PAY $27,000,000

WASHINGTON, Oct. 21.—Practically all of the corporation tax, aggregating a total of $27,000,000, has been collected by the Treasury Department. The old law under which it was collected will become inoperative and was paid apparently with less reluctance than any other internal revenue tax imposed.

SCOUTMASTER TELLS DUTIES OF BOY SCOUTS

Today and Tomorrow Scoutmaster George S. Barton will give the Annex the Boy Scouts of New England whose ideas on scouting you do not think you may have plenty to do until he has put on the American Boy Scouts' Scouting Manual is ready for publication.

By GEORGE S. BARTON.

It is advisable to organize a troop of boys for a week as a permanent organization. I think that Saturday is the best day for that would be chosen.

The boys are expected to meet at the scout master's house at 9 o'clock in the morning and be dismissed at noon. But the conduct of the troop depends entirely upon the scoutmaster. Some troops are dismissed after one day's drill, while others are kept together for months.

Before this stage is reached, however, the scoutmaster will have to undergo a course of drilling in signaling, first aid and pioneering work.

If a scout were simply an automaton, and had only mastered the principles of the scout law, then the rigid training would be easy. But the scout is one who utterly runs from one extreme to another, and the scoutmaster must do duty. He must be patient, reliant and intelligent, and above all he must have the nature of an instructor. Scouts are not to be driven like sheep.

Therefore, let the scoutmaster and patrol leaders in their patrol work do as much as possible. Once a patrol leader has been trained from their ranks, and if he does not meet with the approval of the scoutmaster, he should be removed and another put in his place.

The scoutmaster must not be afraid to say something to the boys. He must be their friend, but he must not be afraid to say something to them. He must be their friend, but he must not be afraid to say something to them. He must be their friend, but he must not be afraid to say something to them.

STATE ST. NEWS FOR INVESTORS

It is not thought that the dissolution of the Steel Trust will have any effect upon the Street have agreed that there is cessation and hence a continuance of the present moderate rate of dividends.

sentiment among traders still of selling, and speculators evince an inclination to buy on all the recessions.

The manufacturers are part of the old record level of prices a trading area has been established, and they are disposed to show caution in the making of contracts for the delivery of goods over a long period, and operations as a rule inclined to take from hand to mouth.

Information to the effect that some of the more prominent railroads are to be materially increased in their earnings per share is a bull card in more ways than one, particularly as it is expected that this will be followed by orders for replacement of carloads sorts. It would appear from the fact that the railroads are quite certain some money is in hold for them.

Much depends upon the possibilities present of the immediate, but it must be said in this connection that its digestion has been completed and found to be very good, and capable of absorbing a vast amount of nourishment in the way of taking stocks.

All the news now coming in is of an encouraging nature with the single exception of that relating to money. However, as the banking component does not appear to be disturbed the trading element is not likely to suffer, and should March has been foreseen and many preparations made for the time and even shown the worst that is feared come to pass, it will, in a measure, have been anticipated.

One thing that has heartened the bulls more than a trifle is the renewal of the boom which the Steel Trust is not from this earth, and that the upward course of the market does not depend entirely upon its good health.

Nothing minimizes the importance of Mr. Morgan in this or any other situation, but it is entirely within reason to assert that when the unrenowned king of American finance is removed from all his mundane activities Wall street will go out of business.

Interborough-Metropolitan stocks have been accumulated for a speculative advance for some time, but the movement does not seem to be quite ready to launch. When the final announcement was made that no dividend had been received by the Public Service Commission for the Tri-borough subway, traders expected the stock to respond, but they were disappointed. The stock is committed to a movement in the near future, and perhaps it was bashful yesterday because so many people were looking.

The continued advance in the price of silver seems to be beginning to have an influence on silver stocks. The shares of companies producing in the Cobalt camp are rising, while Mexican Southern, Utah and Anaconda are both reaping material benefit from the situation.

During 1909 the consumption of copper in this country averaged 58,000,000 pounds per month. Statistics for the first nine months of 1910 show a domestic consumption at the rate of 65,000,000 pounds per month. This is the highest rate of consumption in the history of this country, and as consumption in Europe has also been extraordinarily large it is evident that the prices for copper have stimulated its use. This is the reason for the good buying of the copper stocks.

Buyers of New York Central are convinced that the stock is worth more than the rate at which it is selling, judging by the way in which they are taking it in. The shorts in the issue are in a decidedly uncomfortable frame of mind and do not know which way to turn. At least 125 is generally looked for in the near future. There is no hint of a raise in dividends.

The people in the West are very optimistic concerning the future of Atchison, and are already pressed with the idea that it will sell at 120 before very long. The fact that earning is and this is the principal reason why it has been so strong. Business on the system is good and gives promise of keeping so, and it is believed that in time the net earnings will show up better than in the past.

Some of those who sold out on Wednesday were buyers of Smelting product. They are convinced that there will be a substantial rise in the stock before the end of the year because of the better feeling toward the silver and copper metals. The stock is in a stronger technical position than it was and this may be more of a trading favorite.

While formal action is yet to be taken by the directors it is understood that the Lake Copper Company will very shortly declare a dividend of 2½ per cent. payable to the stockholders pro rata, at $25 per share. The company will add close to $150,000 to treasury funds. There is about $125,000 on hand at the present time

HERE'S THE BOOK FOR EVERYBODY

The Webster Dictionary has long been the standard. A dictionary is the one book that is of equal value in every home and to old and young alike. There is not a person living, who does not have to consult an authority sometime. The children in school must have a dictionary.

Webster's Dictionary in latest different bindings can be secured at the prices of thirty-five cents, sixty-five cents and ninety-five cents by clipping coupons of seven consecutive dates from the daily and Sunday AMERICAN. Thus every BOSTON AMERICAN reader has the opportunity to get a necessary chattel.

The book in any form of the three bindings is compact, convenient and durable. It contains every word in common use in the English language today. Thousands of the books have been placed in the homes of AMERICAN readers so far. There is no reason why it shouldn't be in yours.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere —in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

REDUCE BUDGET, URGES MAYOR

Mayor Fitzgerald intends to break records for economy in the budget for next year and is urging the heads of departments to practice economy in furnishing estimates of the proposed expenditures. Each official must be prepared to give reasons for every material increase requested.

Instructions to that effect were incorporated in a letter sent by the Mayor to his department heads, calling upon them to secure at his office as soon as possible the blank forms for submitting detailed estimates.

The Mayor wants to have the budget in the hands of the City Council immediately after the Council reorganizes for the coming fiscal year, which will begin February 1 and close January 31, 1912.

For the purpose of keeping down the estimates and assisting the officials to practice economy, a special set of blanks has been prepared and detailed estimates will be required.

FOX NO. 1 IN WELL; FOX NO. 2 A SKUNK

SPRINGFIELD, Oct. 21.—If the drouth keeps on Ed. Flagg expects to grow a private zoo in the dry well in his back yard. Flagg heard a scratching noise in the well. Peering over the edge he spied a fox, which had evidently fallen in in a vain quest for water. Flagg managed to capture the fox. A little later he heard another noise from the well. "Fox No. 2," said Flagg, preparing to add to his Reynard collection. He went to the well, and then he sent word. He sat down on the porch and thought it over. He decided to let animal stay where he is. He is better down there than up here.

Fox No. 2 is a skunk.

PENNSYLVANIA RAILROAD

Bulletin.

OPENING OF THE GREAT PENNSYLVANIA STATION IN NEW YORK

On Sunday, November 27, full train service will be inaugurated by the Pennsylvania Railroad to and from its new station at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-second Street, New York City.

The location of the Pennsylvania Station, one block from Broadway, two blocks from Fifth Avenue, is in the heart of the hotel, club and theatre district of Manhattan. Within a short radius are located the majority of the big retail stores and restaurants. The Seventh Avenue surface cars and the Eighth Avenue surface cars pass its doors; the Thirty-fourth Street surface cars (crosstown) pass its Thirty-fourth Street entrance, and stations of the Sixth Avenue Elevated and Hudson and Manhattan Tubes are a short block from its main entrance.

Time tables showing the service to and from the Pennsylvania Station are now being arranged, and may be obtained at Ticket Offices before the opening of the Station.

Connections will be made at Manhattan Transfer (near Newark) with local trains to and from the downtown stations by way of Jersey City, so that downtown New York passengers who desire may continue to use the Cortlandt and Desbrosses Street Stations and the Hudson Terminal Station of the Hudson and Manhattan Tubes.

Why Should a Man NOT Marry a Suffragette?

There Are Many Reasons—And They Are Not COMICAL

Copyright, 1910, by American Journal-Examiner

A weekly "comic" newspaper, striving to be amusing, offers a reward of $300 "for the best reason or reasons why any man should not marry a suffragette."

Doubtless the comic weekly will receive many of the usual comic answers to the question. An imposing outpouring of masculine wit may be expected.

Without competing for the liberal reward, we should like to answer the question, partially on behalf of the constantly increasing number of women that attach more importance to their brains than to their complexions—while giving proper attention to both—the women who are determined that they will not permit one-half of the human race to remain perpetual drudges of the other half of the population.

Why should not any man marry a suffragette?

Because not every man is fit to marry a woman with brains and character.

Many men want in a wife somebody that will admire qualities that the husband hasn't got, and pretend to think that he has them.

Many a man wants a wife to spend her time flattering his vanity, putting salve on his wounded feelings—when the outside world tells him the truth—making up with praise, affection and patience for all defects and assorted samples of littleness.

Such men should not marry suffragettes.

A suffragette is a woman who believes that mothers of men have a right to interest themselves in the doings of men.

A suffragette is a woman who believes that any human being living under laws made exclusively by others IS NOT FREE.

Women with intelligence enough to demand for themselves a share in government, a ballot with which to protect themselves and their children, are intelligent women.

There are many good reasons why some men should not marry an intelligent woman. An intelligent woman is apt to tell the truth disagreeably, frankly, and there are many men to whom the truth every day would be a most painful infliction.

The man who is accustomed to spend three-quarters of his money on himself and give one-quarter to the home for the wife and children ought not to marry a suffragette. The odds are at least ten to one that before he had been married many months he would be finding himself spending three-quarters of the money on the home and keeping only one-quarter for his own amusements.

The man who has a habit of coming home at night only when all other places are closed is better off without a suffragette for a wife. She would probably reform his ways, by kindness or otherwise, and many men dislike genuine reform.

The man whose ideal of a wife is a pink-cheeked, characterless, prattling, always smiling or weeping, yellow-haired, confiding and foolish female would do as well not to marry a suffragette. What he wants is a doll that can talk and can say, "How great and wonderful you are!" or a hard-working machine that can scrub, cook, wash and take care of a dozen children. That isn't the kind of man for a suffragette. He would not be happy with an intelligent wife.

There is every good reason why a man who is also a goose should not marry a suffragette. She would explain him to himself and make him unhappy!

Mrs. Ricker and the Governorship of New Hampshire

Mrs. Marilla Ricker, candidate for Governor of New Hampshire, admits frankly that she doesn't expect to be elected, but she wants to get the people used to the idea of thinking about a woman for Governor. Mrs. Ricker is seventy, and she accentuates her frankness by declaring that she was always born in 1840.

Equal rights is her platform. "There isn't a reason against women voting," she says, "that doesn't apply to men. Every girl ought to be self-supporting. She ought not to have to marry for a home. Equal suffrage has opened all lines of endeavor to women. As for taxation my idea is that a church steeple should not be any more exempt from taxation than a smokestack."

Mrs. Ricker is typical of a forward and broad movement to secure for women recognition of their abilities. A woman Governor may not be such a distant phenomenon as some of the scoffers would have us believe.

LETTERS FROM AMERICAN READERS

A BULWARK OF POLYGAMY

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Lecky in his "Democracy and Liberty," New York, 1905, page 346, says that "woman suffrage proved to be one of the strongest bulwarks of polygamy" in Utah.

It would be interesting to hear the comments of the woman suffragists on this statement. I am not aware that I have seen any as yet.

REAL USE FOR SOLDIERS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

Your editorial in "What Our Soldiers Could Do" holds many brilliant and fascinating thoughts, and opens up a mental gold mine for the reader. If the material problems of mankind are ever to be solved, this would go for a long way toward solving them. Thousands and thousands of men could be employed by the Government, taught military tactics, and then put to work to develop the vast territory of the United States. The result would naturally be peace and plenty.

When men begin to divide each twenty-four hours by three we'll have eight hours for hard work, eight for recreation and eight hours for sleep. If the Government had large numbers in its employ the eight-hour scheme could more readily be developed. Respectfully,

MRS. JOSEPH HORNING.

THE TARIFF TAX

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

There is a hateful evil effect of the present tariff I have not seen noticed. The income and earnings of millions of our people afford them at the best but a meagre support. Yet the tax imposed by the tariff on wool and woolen clothing is such that those millions must be driven to the use of clothing other than woolen, of less warmth and durability. Their comfort will not only be thus affected and their health and that of their families endangered, but they will be depressed in habits and character as citizens. They will feel conscious of being clothed less worthily than as citizens of the United States they ought and desire to be.

Is not the tariff tax which has such a consequence a crime against American citizenship. To demean millions of citizens, to cause them without fault of theirs to be less self-respecting and respected, is it not an offence "against the peace and dignity of the nation"? Does it not demand condemnation and withdrawal of the nation's confidence from those who inflicted that offensive law, and from those who now defend and approve it?

REAL HAPPINESS

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

The editorial columns are always full of life and interest.

In answer to an article I read the other day, I wish to say that the only way in which to feel happy is by giving to the world that best we have. That does not exactly mean money.

There are numerous ways in which we can help the sad, the lonely and discouraged.

Pleasure trips, balls, outings and other amusements cannot be called real happiness.

Although this be my seventeenth Summer, yet I have found that good, true living lies in unselfishness and a clear conscience. Lincoln and other prominent men would never be so famous if it were not for unselfishness.

Selfish girls of the twentieth century think more of clothes than honor. When honor is our clothing, then we are dressed for lifetime. Respectfully,

JENNIE DOMENITZ.

The Gentle Art of Being Discontented

By THOMAS TAPPER

In a book entitled "Mankind in the Making," Mr. Herbert Wells suggests that our idea of "back to nature" is a battle cry of freedom we little understand. The man back in nature, the original man, the savage, who seems, to a worn-out body and weary spirit, so admirable a type of unrestricted freedom, has undesirable qualities from the very nature of his simplicity. He is full of fear and superstition. He is short lived. He is more or less useless. He is dirty and loathsome, and his habits are not models for imitation.

For a time Mr. Charles Wagner's book, "The Simple Life," ran its joyous course, even through ten-cent editions. It left on the popular mind not much more than the phrase "the simple life," which only too often translates into terms of an abundant pension not deferred to a late period of life, no responsibility, and the general indulgence of having nothing to do. And yet Mr. Wagner did not advocate any of these paralyzing disasters.

A substantial and stirring gospel that nearly every family has in the house, generally in a large ornamental form, is found in the first book of the Old Testament, and well up toward the front. Here we find things are happening.

Everybody is busy.

From God, the beginning, to man, His image, there comes activity. They are digging in the earth; they are sustaining themselves by labor.

Nobody goes to Lenox or Newport.

Everybody is attending strictly to business. Laban drives the sheep. Leah and Rachel are maids in busy waiting seven and fourteen years. Noah spends six hundred years getting ready to be permitted to build the ark. The praise of Abraham and Sarah is a work-praise in defiance of time. And so on. If there is any simple life about this, it is because men walked with God and sustained themselves by the sweat of the brow.

This is the one true and reliable gospel of the simple life. As it says on the first page, there must be meditation, and then strict attention to the business of creation. It all spells Activity.

Pleasure is found not in having done, but in doing.

Rest, when the evening and the morning were the first day, is not inactivity, but the meditative contemplation of the next event.

Working toward better things, stimulated by discontent for things as they are, is the great gospel.

The sanity and security of it all are found in the very divinity of it, and we were made in the image of the divine mind.

Are we forgetting our birth-gift?

The man who retires with a money fortune into sweet inactivity puts himself in jail. It is not the man of sixty that should be Osierized, but the inactive man of any age. Give him, however, one more chance before pressing the saturated sponge to his nostrils by making him repeat Carlyle's dictum: "For God's sake produce something."

It will probably bring him back to life. If it does he will jump into the air—as clear of eye as an eagle, as strong of muscle as an ox, and as fleet of foot as a jack rabbit.

Tinkering Constitutions

By MILO HASTINGS

In Portugal just now they are having an old-fashioned revolution embellished with castle bombardments and disgusting royal love affairs. In the United States we are having a more peaceable and more deliberate, but none the less important, political regeneration.

The man who thinks the form of government selected in the year 1789 for a pioneer nation of three million souls to be perfectly adapted and wholly adequate for the highly civilized and super-commercialized America of 1910 is scarcely less benighted politically than the royalist of Portugal or Spain.

The latter are shackled by the fetish of hereditary kingship; the former by a sentiment of forefather worship which endows men of the past with the superhuman ability of constructing a form of government adapted to social and economic conditions of which they had no more conception than a Roman gladiator had of the aviation meet at Belmont Park.

There is a proper and a useful form of that patriotic sentiment which links the constitution and the flag, and that is in a reverence for the spirit of liberty and democracy which our constitutions, Federal, State and municipal, were drafted to establish, and the true spirit of which can be maintained only by the repeated readjustment of the forms of government to the changing needs of a changing society.

Concrete images stick firmly in the human mind. The wooden god—the ancient document—the outgrown baby dress—throughout the length and breadth of life dead forms encumber while the spirit eludes us.

The men who manipulate the political wires from mahogany furnished offices and sack the cash behind bronze doors know this is our weakness. They and their lifelong hold aloft the idols of precedent and shout of patriotism and praise of law and order, thus to expel our desire to re-establish the rule of the people by reconstructing the mechanism of government.

The huge industrial corporations of the country are untiring constitution tinkers when it comes to the readjustment and improvement of the methods and mechanism by which their corporate ambitions are attained. In fact, they employ the most expert brains that universities can train and money can hire for the purpose of keeping their corporate machinery tinkered up to the highest possible efficiency.

But these same corporations pay other brainy men, called politicians, editors and cartoonists, to oppose and decry the tinkering of the mechanism of the governmental corporations which belong to the people, because they know that such readjustment to modern needs means efficiency, and that the private corporation which exists for the profit of the few prospers directly in proportion to the inefficiency of the public corporation which should serve the many.

Nine men out of ten who have given the matter any serious consideration will concede that the abolition of the convention system and the establishment of the initiative, referendum, recall and other related reforms are absolutely essential for the present-day realization of the ideal of democracy for which our original constitutions were established. Yet the attitude of the old party councils toward these reforms, which propose nothing more radical than a purer democracy, has been that of avoidance or sanctimony, or, when forced to it, half-hearted, incomplete and evasive recognition.

A rational but real reorganization of the mechanism of government, which opponents of progress call "tinkering the constitution," is absolutely essential to prevent the continuation of corporate enslavement, and our only hope of perfecting and perpetuating democracy.

Washington, Hamilton and Jefferson belonged to the constitution tinkering class in 1789, though they differed in the detail of their opinions.

William R. Hearst, LaFollette and men like them are to-day agreed as to the need of constitution tinkering, though they may differ in their opinions as to the extent of the needed changes.

Roger Mansel, Joe Cannon and Charlie Murphy do not approve of tinkering constitutions—they believe the practice to be dangerous.

Little Bobbie

He Writes About Pa's Tuxedo Coat

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

Ma is always talking to Pa about how he wares his business suites so much. You hardly ever put on your Tuxedo, Ma sed, & I can't remember how long it has been since you have wore your evening clothes. & what in the world made you buy the frock suit? sed Ma. If you are never going for to ware it. This is a nice & sunny afternoon. Why not let Ba go out for a walk? & you can ware your nice litle & pure frock coat & striped trouser.

I am reddy & willing to go not for a walk with you, sed Pa & inik little Bobbie along, but I am agreed putting on my afternoon outfit. What is the matter with this nice blue sack sute which I have on? It will taik me half a hour to change. & maybe longer. Let me go the way I am.

No sed Ma, you must ware your frock coat or we shall stay at home.

Then Pa sighed & went in the bedroom & changed his close. It took him mearly a hour, beekaus he cuddent find his shirt & nectie & his striped pants & his smiling stick. Wen he was all dressed he was red in the face from hurrying so, & he was puffing.

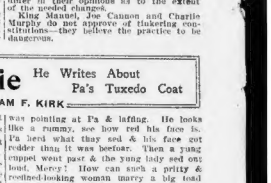
Then we all went out for a walk, but Pa seem having a bit of fun, beekaus his high collar hurt him & he has a very short neck. He kept putting his fingers under the high collar, & grunting. Wen Ma wasent looking Pa put his white handkerchief inside of his collar, & Ma sed here, take that handkerchif out of yure neck. Where do you think you are, at a fat man's picnic?

It feels very comfortable, sed Pa. Folks wont notis it, & it will help do they will think it is only a boil. But Ma made him taik out the handkerchif & poor Pa kep gitting redder & redder in the face.

Pbe the old man with the long coat sed two yung kids on the corner. They was pointing at Pa & laffing. He looks like a rummy, see how red his face is. Pa herd what they sed & his face got redder than it was befoar. Then a yung cuppel went past & the yung lady sed out loud, Mercy! How can such a pritty & reetined-looking woman marry a big redd like that man in the frock coat. Maybe he has a kind hart, sed the man wich she was with.

Neerly every ten feet sumbody sed sumthing about how nice Ma and me looked, but they all laffed at Pa in his long coat. I guess Pa wud have been glad to have it rain, so he cud lift his coat up & make it shorter. He was good & mad, too.

Wife, sed Pa, we have walked far enuff. I have stood all that I am going to stand for one day. So Pa made us turn around



& go back hoam. I dont think Ma blamed him much, I know I dident. Jest before we got hoam Pa met a frend named Mister Brown. They stood & talked a minit, & then we went on to the house, & Pa dident stop to unbottom his collar, he jerked it rite off his neck & threw it in a corner. Then he went & got a fan & started to fan hisself.

That trend of yures is a nice looking man, issent he, sed Ma. Did you notis his handsum & cool he looked in his nice blue sack suit?

Then Pa threw up both of his hands & sed Bobbie, can you beat that?
